the artful species explores the idea that our aesthetic responses and art behaviors are connected to our evolved human nature our humanoid forerunners displayed aesthetic sensibilities hundreds of thousands of years ago and the art standing of prehistoric cave paintings is virtually uncontested in part one stephen davies analyses the key concepts of the aesthetic art and evolution and explores how they might be related he considers a range of issues including whether animals have aesthetic tastes and whether art is not only universal but cross culturally comprehensible part two examines the many aesthetic interests humans take in animals and how these reflect our biological interests and the idea that our environmental and landscape preferences are rooted in the experiences of our distant ancestors in considering the controversial subject of human beauty evolutionary psychologists have traditionally focused on female physical attractiveness in the context of mate selection but davies presents a broader view which decouples human beauty from mate choice and explains why it goes more with social performance and self presentation part three asks if the arts together or singly are biological adaptations incidental byproducts of nonartadaptations or so removed from biology that they rate as purely cultural technologies davies does not conclusively support any one of the many positions considered here but argues that there are grounds nevertheless for seeing art as part of human nature art serves as a powerful and complex signal of human fitness and so cannot be incidental to biology indeed aesthetic responses and art behaviors are the touchstones of our humanity providing a distillation of knowledge in the various disciplines of arts education dance drama music literature and poetry and visual arts the handbook synthesizes existing research literature helps define the past and contributes to shaping the substantive and methodological future of the respective and integrated disciplines of arts education while research can at times seem distant from practice the handbook aims to maintain connection with the lived practice of art and of education capturing the vibrancy and best thinking in the field of theory and practice the handbook is organized into 13 sections each centering on a major area or issue in arts education research these areas include history of arts education curriculum evaluation cultural centers appreciation composition informal learning child culture creativity the body spirituality and technology the individual chapters address cross cultural research related to the central theme of the section from the perspectives of the particular arts discipline interludes provide reflective thoughts on the theme

a unique book about esthetic aspects of designing utilitarian products must reading for students and teachers of design designers product development engineers and manufacturers who want to increase sales and profit if you ve ever wondered why good looks seem to sell products you ll find lewalski s analysis revealing and stimulating lewalski refuses to give up the problems of esthetics as obscure and unexplainable rather drawing on his own broad background in design as well as extensive reading in psychology lewalski formulates an original and workable theory of design he confronts the notion that our esthetic preferences are totally detached from our practical needs and reveals and analyzes a subtle connection between both a basis for product design courses in selected universities richly illustrated and with a comprehensive annotated bibliography product esthetics challenges the way we see and shape the world around us the foundations of aesthetics the arts and art education have been re examined in recent years in light of the resurgence of scientific aesthetics as a research discipline the development of contemporary cognitive science encompassing aspects of computer science psychology philosophy linguistics and so on and the advances of neuroscience each of the five volumes in the stone art theory institutes series and the seminars on which they are based brings together a range of scholars who are not always directly familiar with one another s work the outcome of each of these convergences is an extensive and unpredictable conversation on knotty and provocative issues about art this third volume in the series what do artists know is about the education of artists the mfa degree is notoriously poorly conceptualized and now it is giving way to the phd in art practice meanwhile conversations on freshman courses in studio art continue to be bogged down by conflicting agendas this book is about the theories that underwrite art education at all levels the pertinent history of art education and the most promising current conceptualizations the contributors are areti adamopoulou glenn adamson rina arya louisa avgita jan baetens su baker ciaron benson andrew blackley jeroen boomgaard brad buckley william conger john conomos christopher csikszentmihalyi anders dahlgren jonathan dronsfield marta edling laurie fendrich michael fotiadis christopher frayling miguel gonzalez virgen r e h gordon charles green vanalyne green barbara jaffee tom mcguirk william marotti robert nelson hakan nilsson saul ostrow daniel palmer peter plagens stephan schmidt wulffen
