it is difficult to conjecture how much george herbert's return to the spiritual life was due to the sudden failure of royal patronage and how much to his own devotion but it is vain to pretend that it was at first an easy or a palatable change of front for him in this time of retirement in london and kent says walton he had many conflicts with himself whether he should return to the painted pleasures of a court life or betake himself to a study of divinity and enter into sacred orders to which his mother had often persuaded him these were such conflicts as they only can know that have endured them for ambitious desires and the outward glory of this world are not easily laid aside but at last god inclined him to put on a resolution to serve at his altar from the introduction by arthur waugh

the poet george herbert was born in 1593 and died just before his fortieth birthday in 1633 while an undergraduate at cambridge he wrote to tell his mother that he had resolved that the poetry he wrote would always be consecrated to god's glory he wrote poetry throughout his life but we only know of it now because from his death bed he sent the manuscript of the collection of his poems known as the temple to his friend nicholas ferrar of little gidding he asked him to bring that piece into the world if he thought good of it else to burn it ferrar thought so highly of it that he said he could not sufficiently admire it as a rich jewel and most worthy to be in the hands and hearts of all true christians within a few months of herbert's death ferrar had had the poems published and thirteen new editions were published during the next seventy years today fewer people know herbert's poetry jane falloon has written heart in pilgrimage because of her desire that it should be more widely read and appreciated by non academic lovers of literature new readers will be astonished by its accessibility his sentiments and humour are so modern and immediate they will find that poem after poem gives them a feeling of wonder delight recognition of genius sheer happiness and shock she has chosen twenty four of her favourite poems and has added to each of them her own appreciation and critical analysis combining her own commentary with that of such distinguished herbert scholars as helen vendler elizabeth clarke t s eliot seamus heaney and dr rowan williams the archbishop of canterbury to whom the book is dedicated she has introduced this selection with chapters on the life of george herbert and also of his friend nicholas ferrar without whose efforts these wonderful poems would have been lost to the world
