helps the reader to confront and address the personal issues of experienced and feared loss thus enabling them as a professional carer to work more effectively with others presents a clear insight into the links between theoretical personal and professional issues provides highly practical guidance on coping with the most difficult situations structured questions are designed to trigger consideration of key issues

a warm moving and practical guide to grief from a leading bereavement counsellor grief works features deeply affecting case studies of the author's clients which will appeal to readers of Atul Gawande's Being Mortal, Stephen Grosz's The Unexamined Life, and Paul Kalanithi's When Breath Becomes Air. Death is the last taboo in our society and grief is still profoundly misunderstood so many of us feel awkward and uncertain around death and shy away from talking honestly with family and friends. Grief Works is a compassionate guide that will inform and engage anyone who is grieving from the expected death of a parent to the sudden unexpected death of a small child and provide clear advice for those seeking to comfort the bereaved with deeply moving case studies of real people's stories of loss and brilliantly accessible and practical advice. Grief Works will be passed down through generations as the definitive guide for anyone who has lost a loved one and revolutionize the way we talk about life, loss, and death.

The loss of a loved one is one of the most painful experiences that most of us will ever have to face in our lives. This book recognises that there is no single solution to the problems of bereavement but that an understanding of grief can help the bereaved to realise that they are not alone in their experience. Long recognised as the most authoritative work of its kind, this new edition has been revised and extended to take into account recent research findings on both sides of the Atlantic. Parkes and Prigerson include additional information about the different circumstances of bereavement including traumatic losses, disasters, and complicated grief, as well as providing details on how social, religious, and cultural influences determine how we grieve. Bereavement provides guidance on preparing for the loss of a loved one and coping after they have gone. It also discusses how to identify the minority in whom bereavement may lead to impairment of physical and/or mental health and how to ensure they get the help they need. This classic text will continue to be of value to the bereaved themselves as well as the professionals and friends who seek to help and understand them.

Grief and Bereavement in Contemporary Society is the authoritative guide to the study of and work with major themes in bereavement. The classic edition includes a new preface from the lead editors discussing advances in the field since the book's initial publication. The book's chapters synthesize the best of research-based conceptualization and clinical wisdom across 30 of the most important topics in the field. The volume's contributors come from around the world and their work reflects a level of cultural awareness of the diversity and universality of bereavement and its challenges that has rarely been approximated by other volumes. This is a readable, engaging, and comprehensive book that shares the most important scientific and applied work on the contemporary scene with a broad international audience. It's an essential addition to anyone with a serious interest in death, dying, and bereavement.

grief and loss are inevitable a part of life s journey through storytelling this resource offers a general map of the landscape of suffering where ultimately love can heal grief s wound grief is a universal human experience painful and inevitable in this wise and compassionate book a psychiatrist who has done extensive work and research with the bereaved shares her broad experience revealing how people cope with understand and eventually adapt to many different bereavements in the course of human life those first few hours and days after a loved one has died may seem to pass like a dream and only afterward does the real work of grieving and healing begin in this comprehensive book beverley raphael describes all the stages of mourning and healing and analyzes how the effects of loss differ at each stage of life starting with the infant's loss of a parent taking up the effects on adolescents of death in the family and moving on to the losses people face in adult life and in old age raphael with sensitivity and grace shows how the dynamics of grief and recovery vary over the course of time in describing the experience of loss the author provides the reader with a rich understanding of how different people at different ages cope with grief loss and pain the most thorough book on the subject ever written the anatomy of bereavement is the standard work grief is a family affair when a loved one dies the distress reverberates throughout the immediate and extended family family therapy has long attended to issues of loss and grief yet not as the dominant therapeutic paradigm bereavement care for families changes that it is a practical resource for the clinician one that draws upon the evidence supporting family approaches to bereavement care and also provides clinically oriented strategic guidance on how to incorporate family approaches into other models subsequent chapters set forth a detailed research based therapeutic model that clinicians can use to facilitate therapy engage the ambivalent deal with uncertainty manage family conflict develop realistic goals and more any clinician sensitive to the roles family members play in bereavement care need look no further than this groundbreaking text bereavement provides guidance on preparing for the loss of a loved one and coping once they have gone long recognised as the most authoritative work of its kind this new edition is revised to take into account recent findings in the us and uk insightful and refreshing professor dennis klass webster university religion department st louis usa a tour de force dr colin murray parkes obe md frcpsych president of cruse some societies and some individuals find a place for their dead others leave them behind in recent years researchers professionals and bereaved people themselves have struggled with this should the bond with the dead be continued or broken what is clear is that the grieving individual is not left in a social vacuum but has to struggle with expectations from self family friends professionals and academic theorists this ground breaking book looks at the social position of the bereaved they find themselves caught between the living and the dead sometimes searching for guidelines in a de ritualized society that has few to offer sometimes finding their grief inappropriately pathologised and policed at its best bereavement care offers reassurance validation and freedom to talk where the client has previously encountered judgmentalism in this unique book tony walter applies sociological insights to one of the most personal of human situations on bereavement is aimed at students on medical nursing counselling and social work courses that include bereavement as a topic it will also appeal to sociology students with an interest in death dying and mortality an encounter with the death of another is often an occasion when the bereaved need to be sustained in their loss relieved of the anxiety that the meeting with death engenders and comforted in their grief it is a time when those left behind often seek to redress wrongs in themselves or in the relationships that death has shaken and upset in both collective and individual responses to the trauma of encountering death we witness efforts to counter the misfortune and to explain the meaning of the loss to turn memory into blessing to reconcile life with death to regenerate life and redeem both the bereaved and the dead sometimes loss may transform the bereaved in ways that lead to growth and maturity other times a loss leads to unremitting anger or melancholia there may be a variety of spiritual expressions that the bereaved experience in their time of loss but there appears to be some common elements in all of them overtime survivors feelings are transformed into growing exploration of the spiritual a profound sense of rebirth newfound feelings of self mastery or confidence and a deeply held conviction that life goes on the contributions to this volume are based on a conference held in new york on the first anniversary of september 11 2001 contributors include peter metcalf robert jay lifton ilana harlow robert a neimeyer samuel heilman and neil gillman this sensitive and heartfelt volume relates specifically to issues of death bereavement and mourning in the aftermath of the attack on the world trade center but the applications to other individual and catastrophic events is obvious the contributions do not simply explore how people deal with bereavement or are psychologically affected by extreme grief they address how people can try to find meaning in tragedy and loss and strive to help restore order in the wake of chaos the multidisciplinary perspectives include those of anthropology psychology theology social work and art everyone will experience a bereavement at some point yet the death of a loved one is always a shock this book takes a sensitive look at the issues surrounding grief and loss covering feelings individuals experience after a bereavement healthy and unhealthy ways to grieve and much more

how do bereaved people come to terms with their loss what factors are important in successful coping the death of a loved one is one of the most painful experiences that we have to encounter if the loved one is a child or partner the experience can be especially devastating how do we cope do our families provide sufficient support would professional help be better in this book originally published in 1992 the author provides an in depth study of the many aspects of bereavement and the grieving process with ample support from personal accounts of bereaved people she examines the experience of bereavement what can go wrong the importance of social networks both family and professional and looks at how society's attitudes to death and dying can affect our ability to cope there are specific chapters on the death of children in childhood adolescence and adult life and on the death of a partner the result is a book that will be of importance to all those who have regular contact with the dying and bereaved based on the author's own experience after the sudden death of his wife this book combines personal testimony and practical advice this sensitive book offers practical down to earth advice and encouragement for every stage of the grief journey in five parts it deals with facing the loss experiencing the pain addressing the unique circumstances of one's loss finding help in the time of mourning and learning to live again living after a death presents a warm caring approach to the grief process and offers a positive vision of hope and growth through the experience of bereavement its words of wisdom are valuable both to grieving individuals and the professionals who help them this is a book about death loss grief and mourning but with an unusual twist it is different in that it explores specific kinds of deaths encountered within families and households rather than general concepts of mourning it is even more unusual because here six psychoanalysts reveal how they have suffered processed and survived losses in their own lives at the same time bringing clinical and theoretical perspectives of various psychoanalytic schools to bear on their own as well as others experiences the narratives in this book use the power of subjective experience as described by psychoanalysts themselves to understand contextualize and extend existing clinical approaches each chapter addresses the death of a different loved one the losses discussed include death of a mother death of a father death of a sibling death of a spouse death of a child and death of a pet recognizing the deep significance of pets in human households these accounts are bookended by a chapter reviewing the spectrum of emotional reactions to death and current ideas of grief and mourning and a chapter weaving together the many narratives as well as exploring some additional situations and ideas provided by publisher
