now in paperback a compelling accessible and provocative piece of work that forces us to question many of our assumptions gillian tett author of fool s gold quant physicists working on wall street as quantitative analysts have been widely blamed for triggering financial crises with their complex mathematical models their formulas were meant to allow wall street to prosper without risk but in this penetrating insider s look at the recent economic collapse emanuel derman former head quant at goldman sachs explains the collision between mathematical modeling and economics and what makes financial models so dangerous though such models imitate the style of physics and employ the language of mathematics theories in physics aim for a description of reality but in finance models can shoot only for a very limited approximation of reality derman uses his firsthand experience in financial theory and practice to explain the complicated tangles that have paralyzed the economy models behaving badly exposes wall street s love affair with models and shows us why nobody will ever be able to write a model that can encapsulate human behavior the subject of this book is an epistemological consideration concerning the nature of knowledge but other than the most essays on the subject of knowledge here i am going to deal with a largely overlooked account to try to find an answer to the question of knowledge this is the mental state account of knowledge or to put it into the main question is knowledge a mental state now the question is why is the epistemic thinking of cook wilson prichard and austin afflicted with such ignorance in contemporary epistemic discussions the answer is an unreflected platonian heritage during 2000 years of epistemic thinking a notion which is similar to a point hetherington has called epistemic absolutism so my main conclusion here is the jtb thesis knowledge is some aspect of justified true belief is insufficient in order to give an account of the nature of knowledge a consequence from this is all the epistemic theories which are dealing with the jtb thesis are based on deficient assumptions hence their results notably the well known externalism internalism debate are insufficient too so there is a need for a new theory of knowledge based on the ms thesis
