David Harvey is among the most influential Marxist thinkers of the last half century. This book offers a lucid and authoritative introduction to his work with a structure designed to reflect the enduring topics and insights that serve to unify Harvey's writings over a long period of time. Harvey's writings have exerted huge influence within the social sciences and the humanities. In addition, his work now commands a global readership among left political activists and those interested in current world affairs. Harvey's central preoccupation is capitalism and the impacts of its growth-obsessed, contradictory dynamics. His name is synonymous with key analytical concepts like the spatial fix and accumulation by dispossession. This critical introduction to his thought is an essential companion for both new and more experienced readers. The critique of capitalism is one of the most important undertakings of our time, and Harvey's work offers powerful tools to help us see why a softer capitalism is insufficient and a post-capitalist future is necessary. This book is an important resource for scholars and graduate students in geography, politics, and many other disciplines across the social sciences and humanities.

The emphasis of this book is to explore two major philosophical influences in contemporary human geography, namely logical positivism and marxism and to explore the relationships between philosophy methodology and geographical research rather than being a biography of david harvey the book contributes to the understanding of one of the most innovative and iconoclastic scholars in contemporary anglo american human geography

this book lifts the taboo on maladaptation a different driver of environmentally induced migration which shines a light on the negative consequences arising from the solutions to climate change adaptation and mitigation policies through a systematic analysis and critique of existing mitigation and adaptation policies under the united nations framework convention on climate change unfccc and international development community and supplemented by a small empirical study in indonesia this book catalogues how maladaptation is manufactured under existing climate change solutions it posits that customary communities in general and women in particular are disproportionately affected by the dominant market driven logics that underscore current climate change solutions adopted by the unfccc the injustice of maladaptation is highlighted as multi faceted and explored using political economic social and ecological lenses and the concept of environmental reintegration is also explored as a possible solution to this issue further possibilities are then presented in the afterword as a combination of what the new post neoliberalism conjuncture could potentially look like this volume will be of great interest to students scholars and practitioners of climate change environmental policy environmental migration and displacement development studies i ngos and civil society actors and activists more broadly
