seminar paper from the year 2009 in the subject english language and literature studies literature grade 1 5 ernst moritz arndt university of greifswald institut für fremdsprachliche philologien course introduction to postcolonialism language english abstract in order to meet these ambitions i will present several general aspects on the color purple including setting and formal features in the following chapter the third and fourth chapters serve as the main part of my paper since they deal with characteristics and the development of celie in detail consequently i will seek to uncover reasons for her lack of self esteem in chapter 3 by taking a closer look to her childhood first moreover i will concentrate on one main problem celie has to face during her life sexual discrimination in this connection i find it also most important to examine key figures and scenes that have turned her into the woman she is however as the story continues it becomes also obvious that celie undergoes changes thus chapter 4 will focus on her identification process and the respective result while the preceding chapter demonstrates the establishment of celie s personality the attention will now be turned to decisive factors that generate and support her search of identity hence especially the relationship between celie and shug the initiator of her transformation and marginally the influence of her newly created social network will be taken into account lastly i will examine the final stage and result of her development the evolution of a dignified self confident woman eventually chapter 5 will provide a brief summary of the discussion furthermore it will evaluate celie s process in consideration of the given task and highlight the importance and universal validity of her development the literature i have concentrated on is in large part taken from journals that hold a broad range of essays on the color purple in general and on the character celie in particular however first and foremost the research refers to alice walker s novel itself as no single comprehensive analysis on the color purple exists i will not focus on one academic only but instead take different perspectives into account however i would like to point out the essays of daniel ross charles proudfit emma waters dawson and trudier harris as they were rather useful for my discussion

seminar paper from the year 2007 in the subject english language and literature studies literature grade 1 university of vienna language english abstract the color purple is alice walker s masterpiece which made the author not only the first female afro american author to receive a pulitzer price but moreover brought her world fame and a broader recognition of her other works this analysis of the text focuses on motifs themes and symbolism used in the story it also talks about the author by giving an in dept overview not only about her life but also the sociocultural background that shaped this novel as mentioned before a clear focus is put on themes symbols and motifs in the novel which are widely used and therefore also are somehow responsible for the diversity of approaches to reading the novel the textual analysis is enhanced by a brief summary of the plot characters and their relationship as well as a compressed paragraph talking about the setting and an overview over some narrative techniques used in the novel intended for teachers and students of american literature this book is the first comprehensive analysis of romantic tendencies in postmodernist american fiction the book challenges the opinion expressed in the columbia history of the american novel 1991 and propagated by many influential scholars that the mainstream of postmodernist fiction is represented by the disjunctive and nihilistic work of such writers as kathy acker donald Barthelme and robert coover professor alsen disagrees he contends that this kind of fiction is not read and taught much outside an isolated but powerful circle in the academic community it is the two part thesis of professor alsen s book that the mainstream of postmodernist fiction consists of the widely read work of the nobel prize laureates saul bellow and toni morrison and other similar writers and that this mainstream fiction is essentially romantic to support his argument professor alsen analyzes representative novels by saul bellow j d salinger norman mailer flannery o connor john updike kurt vonnegut philip roth thomas pynchon toni morrison the later john Barth alice walker william kennedy and paul auster professor alsen demonstrates that the traits which distinguish the fiction of the romantic postmodernists from the fiction of their disjunctive and nihilist colleagues include a vision of life that is a form of philosophical idealism an organic view of art modes of storytelling that are reminiscent of the nineteenth century romance and such themes as the nature of sin or evil the negative effects of technology on the soul and the quest for transcendence is feminism in crisis with many feminists now questioning identification and focusing on differences between women what is the fate of feminist criticism s traditional imperative to rescue women s stories and make their voices heard in this provocative rereading of the classic texts of the feminist literary canon carla kaplan takes a hard look at the legacy of feminist criticism and argues that important features of feminism s own canon have been overlooked in the rush to rescue and identify texts african american women s texts she demonstrates often dramatize their distrust of their readers their lack of faith in the cultural conversation through strategies of self silencing and self talk at the same time she argues the homoerotics of women s writing has too often gone unremarked not only does longing for an ideal listener draw women's texts into a romance with the reader but there is an erotic excess which is part of feminist critical recuperation itself drawing on a wide range of resources from sociolinguistics and anthropology to literary theory kaplan's highly readable study proposes a new model for understanding and representing talk she supplies fresh readings of such feminist classics as jane eyre the yellow wallpaper incidents in the life of a slave girl their eyes were watching god and the color purple revealing how their erotics of talk works as a rich political allegory and form of social critique a study guide new edition for alice walker's the color purple excerpted from gale's acclaimed novels for students this concise study guide includes plot summary character analysis author biography study questions historical context suggestions for further reading and much more for any literature project trust novels for students for all of your research needs fascinating chapters on the relationship between fiction the theoretical and political debates among women's and feminist groups and the questions of sexuality and race merit broad readership and prove more culturally illuminating for their emphasis on popular fiction in brief

this is a reader's companion to alice walker's the color purple since its introduction to the world alice walker's the color purple has been recreated in other media audiences are just as likely to have learned about celie's journey from the 1985 warner bros movie or the 2005 tony award winning musical as from the pulitzer prize winning novel each iteration of the color purple offers ambivalent representations of black female experience in the early 20th century era of the american south my research thus far has placed me in the midst of other audience members enjoying the highs and lows of celie's on stage story and behind a desk shuffling through walker's personal letters and manuscripts in my research i look at all three performances of the color purple the book film and musical in order to evaluate the broader scope of effects created by all three the three primary areas of my research are audience reception adaptation and performance which allow me to analyze the impact of portrayed blackness in the color purple in my research i define all three media as performance and analyze specific alterations as the performances shift from novel to screenplay to musical interrogating the various adaptations between the three media i analyze how each director author and playwright represented the fundamentals of race gender and class in their performance of the color purple though the generic differences between literature film and the stage are enough to ensure that the representations will be different i'm interested in the impact of those changes using reviews and other testimony of audience experience i am exploring the potential of each performance to influence personal and social change
