the collapse of marxism in much of the third world as well as europe was so sudden and spectacular that it is hard to believe that in the space of seven years the journal of communist studies could bring out special issues both on the creation of military marxist regimes in africa and on their demise and the wider collapse of marxist governments on the continent this volume first published in 1992 derives from a roundtable on the theme of the retreat from moscow african and eastern european experiences of disengagement from marxism held at the university of birmingham in september 1991 the conference examined the recent experiences of african countries in transition from marxism and marxist influenced ideologies to an uncertain future based on the market economy and a plural political system this book sheds a radical light on the issue of race showing that social and racist discourses are ideological and political mystifications masking exploitation it deals with substantive issues that have the potential to enhance our understanding how marxist theory can be quite useful in interpreting the race paradigm this book retells the story of mass struggle and working class resistance in africa the first chapter by leo zeilig and david seddon looks at the experience of marxism in africa since independence the role of the class struggle in shaping political change on the continent and how stalinism has distorted marxism in the second chapter david seddon gives an historical overview of the african working class and the development of capitalism on the continent from one of the continent s first strikes in 1874 in sierra leone to the struggles against the first governments of national independence book jacket title summary field provided by blackwell north america inc all rights reserved from the late 1960s until the mid 1980s the influence of marxist ideas expanded in sub saharan africa the catholic church saw this influence as likely to affect the accomplishment of its mission and its pastoral efforts accordingly sought to deal with the marxist thrust in the late 1980s marxist influence in africa declined sharply as marxist political dominance became less intense nevertheless the church s encounter with african marxism constituted an important chapter in both secular and ecclesiastical history finding a social voice records and analyzes the significant elements of this encounter father mckenna s book investigates how postcolonial african regimes under varying degree of marxist influence have interacted with the catholic church and studies how the church has grown through its response to that interaction the book contributes greatly to the virtually unexplored topic of church state interaction in contemporary africa mckenna s claim that the catholic chruch s response to marxism was a part of its coming to maturity part of its bringing its social perspective to bear on the processes of political economic and social modernization through which traditional cultures were passing is an important contribution to the more recent literature on the emergence of civil society in sub saharan africa the text also provides an introduction to post vatican ii understandings of ecclesiastical activity in africa it reviews the theory and practice of marxism as developed by marx engels lenin and the leaders of soviet russia and other communist countries it then presents an overview of the ways in which marxist influence worked in africa and a similar overview of how the church functioned and was affected by that influence finally the book offers case studies on the interaction of marxism and the church in four diverse africa countries mozambique madagascar zimbabwe and zambia the introductory chapters make this book accessible to the general reader the book as a whole is an enrichment of our understanding of contemporary africa early in life walter rodney became a major revolutionary figure in a dizzying range of locales that traversed the breadth of the black diaspora in north america and europe in the caribbean and on the african continent he was not only a witness of a pan african and socialist internationalism in his efforts to build mass organizations catalyze rebellious ferment and theorize an anti colonial path to self emancipation he can be counted among its prime authors decolonial marxism records such a life by collecting previously unbound essays written during the world turning days of black revolution in drawing together pages where he elaborates on the nexus of race and class offers his reflections on radical pedagogy outlines programs for newly independent nation states considers the challenges of anti colonial historiography and produces balance sheets for a dozen wars for national liberation this volume captures something of the range and power of rodney s output but it also demonstrates the unbending consistency that unites his life and work the ongoing reinvention of living conception of marxism and a respect for the still untapped potential of mass self rule first published in 1986 this is a collection of editorial and articles covering military marxist regimes in the african locations of the horn of africa benin the people s republic of congo madagascar and burkina faso
