motivated by the structure of wto negotiations we analyze a bargaining environment in which negotiations proceed bilaterally and sequentially under the most favored nation mfn principle we identify backward stealing and forward manipulation problems that arise when governments bargain under the mfn principle in a sequential fashion we show that these problems impede governments from achieving the multilateral efficiency frontier unless further rules of negotiation are imposed we identify the wto nullification or impairment and renegotiation provisions and its reciprocity norm as rules that are capable of providing solutions to these problems in this way we suggest that wto rules can facilitate the negotiation of efficient multilateral trade agreements in a world in which the addition of new and economically significant countries to the world trading system is an ongoing process nber website
