winner of the nicholas bessaraboff prize musical repertory of great importance and quality was performed on viols in sixteenth and early seventeenth century england this is reported by thomas mace 1676 who says that your best provision for playing such music is a chest of old english viols and he names five early english viol makers than which there are no better in the world enlightened scholars and performers both professional and amateur who aim to understand and play this music require reliable historical information and need suitable viols but so little is known about the instruments and their makers that we cannot specify appropriate instruments with much precision our ignorance cannot be remedied exclusively by the scrutiny or use of surviving antique viols because they are extremely rare they are not accessible to performers and the information they embody is crucially compromised by degradation and alteration drawing on a wide variety of evidence including the surviving instruments music composed for those instruments and the documentary evidence surrounding the trade of instrument making fleming and bryan draw significant conclusions about the changing nature and varieties of viol in early modern england this publication lists over 5 000 scientific instrument makers and retailers working in the british isles together with a further 10 000 names of apprentices and associates the directory transforms our understanding of the history of the scientific instrument making trades in britain each entry includes estimated working dates specific trades addresses training apprentices types of instruments made and brief biographical details as such this volume not only provides essential information for collectors dealers museum curators and scholars but it will also have much to offer economic social and family historians with its evidence about master apprentice links trade connections and family relationships the history of any skilled urban trade is ultimately tied to the growth and development of the city in which it is located from its humble eighteenth century beginnings instrument making grew to be one of new york city s most sizable and important trades by the 1840s the city was the largest producer of instruments in the western hemisphere and in the decades that followed designs and innovations pioneered by new york artisans influenced and inspired instrument makers throughout the world although many of the these instruments survive in american museums there existed no comprehensive guide to their makers nancy groce s biographical dictionary chronicles all of these master craftsmen in colorful detail from the obscure work of geoffry stafford in 1691 to the zenith of the 1890s and on to the great depression of the 1930s this unique reference book is a compendium of makers and manufacturers of every variety of musical instrument made in the united states today it provides names and addresses of instrument makers indexed alphabetically each entry gives all known information on the total and annual number of instruments the maker has produced the number of workers in the shop the year the individual or firm began manufacturing instruments whether the instruments are available on demand or made to order and whether a brochure is available from the maker complete cross references are provided for companies known by more than one name for partnerships and for parent and subsidiary firms instruments are also indexed and makers are listed by state for the convenience of the reader lists of schools of instrument making and relevant organizations and publications are included as appendixes the directory will serve two major purposes first it will be an invaluable source of information for historians and for the rapidly growing number of collectors of musical instruments who will be able to use the data gathered here in appraising instruments and tracing their history the second purpose is simply to increase communication among instrument makers and to make their names available to retail and wholesale outlets for their products this book is an entirely new work rather than a revision of lyndsay langwill s sixth edition it is the standard work in its field the most comprehensive work on wind instrument makers in any language and a major reference tool for collectors and researchers some features of the new langwill index are entries for nearly 6500 makers and inventors active from the beginning until the middle of the 20th century nearly 400 representations of maker s marks an index of makers under workplace listing over 1000 localities a comprehensive bibliography of over 600 titles publisher
