Our lives could be improved if we stopped making poor decisions and there's a way to help people do just that. It's called choice architecture and it already affects what you eat, how you learn, and even how you save money. We view every choice we make through a context: everything from the order of items on a menu to the way products are arranged on a shelf can change the way we make choices. The people who create these contexts are choice architects and in Nudge you'll learn how great architects can responsibly shape contexts to help us make better decisions about our diets, our finances, our education, and much more.

Making decisions is something we do all the time. We decide what we're going to wear for the day, what we're going to eat, and make so many other large and small decisions from moment to moment. Decision making is how we survive, but just because we do already do it doesn't necessarily mean we have the skills or fortitude to make better decisions. Sound decisions that are aligned with our values, hopes, dreams, and aspirations require more than a rote response. What we fail to understand are the fundamentals of making the right decision for ourselves and, in some cases, those who depend on us for some of life's most important decisions. Make better decisions provides a road map to shoring up our decision making skills and helping us to follow a path that aligns with where we want to go. Without these crucial skills, we can inadvertently sabotage our efforts and create roadblocks to our success. Here is a sampling of what you'll find in this book: how to unlearn bad decision making skills, why it's important to not make rash decisions, creating realistic deadlines for yourself, how to create and weigh better options, when to seek help from an outside source, how to put what you've learned into practice. If you're ready to take your decision making skills to the next level, read Make Better Decisions today.
