there is a notion amongst some academics that latin american liberation theology has had its day a dream killed off by the nicaraguan and salvadoran revolutions the 1989 demise of socialism and the end of history claims of the champions of capitalism however in this book petrella proves this to be an ill conceived notion and shows that this theology can be reinvented to bring its preferential option for the poor into the real world the actualisation of historical projects is possible by adopting the methods developed by the brazilian champion of critical legal studies robert unger doing so will entail the rejection of these theologians unitary concepts of a despised and rejected capitalism and a canonized and accepted socialism petrella argues for a reconstruction of these concepts and those of democracy and property too he closely analyses the differences in democracy and capitalism as practised across the usa and europe in support for the reconstruction of these concepts bringing about far reaching suggestions for the future of liberation theology history ecclesial practice and the academic study of religion opting for the margins continues to be an important issue at a time when the gap between rich and poor is growing at an alarming rate both in the united states and in many other parts of the world and when other gaps based for example on differences in gender or race continue to linger recently however options for the margins have been challenged by postmodern shifts in intellectual social political and economic realities that often replace preferential options with other emphases such as general concerns for pluralism otherness and difference options for the margins are therefore at best reduced to the special interests of certain minority groups or at worst rejected as antiquated and irrelevant for the twenty first century the essays in this volume show how some forms of postmodern thought and theology can mask patterns of oppression and provide an excuse for deafness to voices from the margins the authors writing from a wide variety of national ethnic and theological perspectives seek to revive the preferential option for the poor for the postmodern world showing how options for the margins can engage postmodernity in new ways and break new ground in religious theological and ethical as well as social political and economic thinking the essays connect philosophical and theological arguments to the concrete realities of the postmodern world and to uncover new sources of energy in the life and death struggles of people across the globe
