the debate about the performance of us students on international assessments of educational achievement routinely fails to account for one consistently stark result us achievement is bifurcated between a group of high performing asian and white students and an exceptionally low performing group of black and hispanic students by summarizing results across 20 major international tests conducted since 1995 this research paper shows that when us racial and ethnic groups are separately compared with other countries asian and white students regularly perform at or near the top of international rankings while black and hispanic students typically rank at or near the bottom furthermore the united states has a substantially larger minority population than all other developed countries and minority status is not synonymous with internationally comparable factors such as socioeconomic level or immigrant status the fact that overall us scores are disproportionately influenced by race and ethnicity suggests that researchers and reformers must reconsider how they use and interpret the results of international achievement tests the research paper recommends providing and analyzing cross national data separately by ethnic groups to inform approaches to improving education for all students in recent years there have been increasing efforts to use accountability systems based on large scale tests of students as a mechanism for improving student achievement the federal no child left behind act nclb is a prominent example of such an effort but it is only the continuation of a steady trend toward greater test based accountability in education that has been going on for decades over time such accountability systems included ever stronger incentives to motivate school administrators teachers and students to perform better incentives and test based accountability in education reviews and synthesizes relevant research from economics psychology education and related fields about how incentives work in educational accountability systems the book helps identify circumstances in which test based incentives may have a positive or a negative impact on student learning and offers recommendations for how to improve current test based accountability policies the most important directions for further research are also highlighted for the first time research and theory on incentives from the fields of economics psychology and educational measurement have all been pulled together and synthesized incentives and test based accountability in education will inform people about the motivation of educators and students and inform policy discussions about nclb and state accountability systems education researchers k 12 school administrators and teachers as well as graduate students studying education policy and educational measurement will use this book to learn more about the motivation of educators and students education policy makers at all levels of government will rely on this book to inform policy discussions about nclb and state accountability systems
