Given recent financial crises and scandals, the rise of corporate social responsibility and the challenge of environmental sustainability, few would disagree that the role of ethics has taken centre stage in the management of organizations. In reality, however, organizations have found it extremely difficult to promote successful ethical behaviour, as this rarely results in short-term gains which can be appraised and rewarded by shareholders. Burnes brings together leading international scholars in the fields of organizational change and leadership to explore and understand the context, theory and successful promotion of ethical behaviour in organizations by focusing on real-world examples. Contributors analyze the issues and challenges that hinder ethical change, leadership which can lead to sustainable organizations. This unique volume brings together the worlds of organizational change, leadership, business ethics and corporate social responsibility, resulting in a book that will be valuable reading in all four fields, with contributions from leading scholars including David Boje, Dexter Dunphy, Suzanne Benn and Carl Rhodes. Organizational Change, Leadership and Ethics is a must-read.

The transportation workforce will be facing severe strains over the next decade as the baby boom generation begins to retire. These strains will be made worse by the relatively small numbers of workers entering the transportation workforce and the small number entering the technical fields that are the source of the workforce. At the same time, the nature of the transportation industry is changing, producing the need for new and broader skill sets. These issues were explored in a workshop. It was concluded that new skills will be required to produce those skills and the number of workers required. New partnerships will also be needed: agencies, private sector firms and educators will have to combine forces to make the training and development processes as effective as possible and to attract students to the sciences and to transportation in particular.
