this book is unique in the way that it looks at the much talked about maritime security through the perspective of national security without disconnect in the terrain specific mode of the ocean the uniqueness is not in the treatment of the concept of maritime security but that of national security in a manner that is different from the beaten notion of physical security of a nation and its people from external and internal threats national security according to the author is more than just military security or the conditions of what is often termed as internal security it is complex according to his studied findings the book provides a warning to governments that any approach to national governance without integrated maritime security can be defeating in the overall objective of maximising national security even for landlocked countries in the modern world the book provides a comprehensive review and analysis of integrated maritime security providing ample scope for further research on many of the concepts and terminologies inculcated as findings of research the interesting aspect is that the author views maritime security as a ghost protocol to hammer his ideas into the earnest listener aurora is a tremendous work aurora is what a literary work should be fully human it is also what used to be known as a major literary work because it s rare to its time it represents a leading edge of consciousness courage and social need a major work that s why it must be buried as we know i m glad i can be part of it aurora is written at a consistently intense dynamic level i wish it could be 500 pages and dropped like a sonic boom on all the acclaimed literary centers of the world and be released like a climatic change for the good in the rest of the world perhaps the most vital feature or effect of aurora is that it expands consciousness or perception it thinks the unthinkable the bankruptcy and worse of the louvre etc the culture it does what a lot of great works of art do it criticizes art itself explicitly and implicitly and in doing so helps to make the needed room for itself in the world of art and in the world in general it creates and helps generate new thought understanding perception going forward it helps not only express the full human condition it helps transform it it's a working work of art a badly needed new experience it enters the battle it will be ignored dismissed and fought by the old world while by the new world it will be part of another story entirely tony christini author of homefront

the united states and the russian federation are engaged in a war of words a war that has elevated tensions between these political military and economic rivals to its highest level since the end of the cold war in 1989 spurring the bellicose discourse 1 russian incursion in the ukraine and crimea to reestablish russian influence in those lands 2 concerns expressed by former warsaw pact nations e.g. poland romania and estonia regarding russian intentions and 3 the response of nato and the u.s. to calm those concerns according to russian leaders this territory historically belongs to russia regardless of this diplomatic debate however facts on the ground matter much more the population in the eastern one third of the country and all of crimea geographically sitting atop the black sea are predominately russian speaking ukrainians whose ancestry has been tied to the land for centuries loathe the russians as a result the conflict has grown into a virtual civil war during the past two decades the united states has supported ukrainian desires to participate in the european union and join nato while russia has argued these actions foment rebellion among what they regard as a minority of ukrainians underneath these somewhat superficial arguments russia worries about its largest submarine base in crimea at sevastopol which they consider utterly vital to their security additionally russia aggressively continues to seek a geographical buffer between itself and europe having been devastated by two great wars during the past 100 years europe protests the incursion but seems unwilling and unable to use military force to push russia back from its designs on ukraine and crimea only the u.s. displays the willingness to hold the line and demand russia back down now the u.s. increases its rapid deployment force and naval assets to the region to put russia in check but what motivates the u.s. russia's nerves remain on edge due to a slumping russia's economy its aging weapon systems and frequent bouts of political unrest domestically but especially in russia's eastern and southern republics russia's federal government depends on a steady high price of oil and natural gas with as much as 52 of its revenue coming from these sources then there is the state of the russian people they suffer under economic sanctions imposed by europe and the united states backed into a corner is it surprising russia rattles its sabre however russia's only sabre its one area of military superiority russia's tactical nuclear weapons outnumbering nato's tactical nukes 10 to 1 in the region as russia weakens in critical areas several principal factors are converging which suggest russia must act now to diminish u.s. economic dominance military superiority and political influence for russia seeks to curb u.s. meddling in regional affairs that they surmise threatens its national security additionally russia advances the strategic view that it is washington and not moscow that promotes domestic disputes throughout eurasia what russians term color revolutions to russia's leaders these color revolutions comprise cia covert operations and insurrections intended to destabilize nations russia regards vital to its interests all the way from syria to afghanistan in short the ukraine controversy may be a symbol of a much broader and deeper conflict it constitutes a geopolitical sparring match a contest in which both sides test the other's resolve to dominate global politics in the 21st century in addition to examining why this verbal exchange foreshadows nuclear war sometime in the next few years this study will discuss whether this potential war could be the fulfillment of biblical predictions regarding the dismal fate of what the bible calls the daughter of babylon finally we consider the possible timing of this horrific confrontation in light of other end time events
