examining the relationship between strangers embodiment and community strange encounters challenges the assumptions that the stranger is simply anybody we do not recognize and instead proposes that he or she is socially constructed as somebody we already know using feminist and postcolonial theory this book examines the impact of multiculturalism and globalization on embodiment and community whilst considering the ethical and political implication of its critique for post colonial feminism a diverse range of texts are analyzed which produce the figure of the stranger showing that it has alternatively been expelled as the origin of danger such as in neighbourhood watch or celebrated as the origin of difference as in multiculturalism the author argues that both of these standpoints are problematic as they involve stranger fetishism they assume that the stranger has a life of its own the figure of the stranger is in serious need of revision as is our understanding of the society against which the stranger is projected under conditions of globalization inside outside markers have been eroded and conventional indicators of we ness are no longer reliable we now live in a generalized state of strangeness one consequence of globalization we no longer know where our community ends and another one begins in such circumstances it is often the case that neighbours are the nearest strangers strangeness occurs when global consciousness outstrips global connectivity and this means that we need to rethink some core elements of globalization theory under conditions of strangeness the stranger is a here today gone tomorrow figure this book identifies the cosmopolitan stranger as the most significant contemporary figure of the stranger one adept at negotiating the confined spaces of globalization in order to promote new forms of social solidarity and connect with distant others we live in a world of oppositional relationships and increasing in group out group divisions christian sociologist matthew vos explains how the problem of the stranger lies at the root of many problems humanity faces such as racism sexism and nationalism he applies classic sociological theory on the stranger to matters of faith and social justice showing that an identity in christ frees us to love strangers as neighbors and friends the book also includes two guest chapters one on intersex persons and the church and one on stranger making in the correctional system this book offers unique insights into how adam smith understood globalization and examines how he incorporated his knowledge of the world and globalization into his classical political economy although smith lived in society that was far from globalized he experienced the beginning of globalization smith considered the most developed society the commercial society the society that results from people meeting with strangers among enlightenment thinkers smith was one of the most important figures with respect to interaction in the world and it is through his lens that the authors view the impact of the mixing of diverse peoples firstly the book describes how smith was influenced by information from around the world leaving eighteenth century europe including smith s native scotland people travelled traded and immigrated to far flung parts of the globe sometimes writing books and pamphlets about their travels informed by these writers smith took into consideration the world beyond europe and strangers with non european backgrounds against that background the book reinterprets smith s moral philosophy in the theory of moral sentiments smith developed his moral philosophy in which he examined how people form opinions through their meetings with strangers he researched how encounters with strangers created the sharing of social rules as such the book studies how smith believed that people in dissimilar communities come to share common concepts of morality and justice lastly it provides an innovative reading of smith s political economy in the wealth of nations smith established the market model of economic society however he saw the limitations of that model since it does not consider the impact of money on economy and international trade he also recognized the limitations of his own equilibrium theory of market the theory that is still influential today social scientists have generally remained impervious to a major economic and cultural adaptation namely the peripatetic lifestyle although this adaptation has been an integral part of developments within the socioeconomic and cultural networks that social scientists study this lack of interest derives perhaps from the ambiguous integration of peripatetics into these networks as well as the often negatively charged constructs gypsies outsiders or marginal others imposed on peripatetics by dominant cultures as peddlers of the strange to borrow a phrase from clifford geertz peripatetics are situated at the fringes of their host societies and many students of the social ecological and behavioral sciences still continue to overlook the roles of peripatetic peoples this collection presents the latest in cross cultural comparative research on the nature of peripatetic peoples contributors examine the place of peripatetic peoples in the everyday lives and diverse cognitive maps of client communities relying on georg simmel s construct of the stranger the contributors to this volume suggest that peripatetic peoples are simultaneously outsiders and insiders but most important they are entrepreneurial middlemen traders par excellence all told the essays provoke vital reassessments of the anthropological focus on the role and status of cultural brokers and go betweens in political economic and social interactions smart homes are domestic spaces outfitted with networked technology made by brands like google facebook amazon and apple however silicon valley purveyors are not the only important actors in smart home development appliance makers logistics companies health and wellness conglomerates insurance companies and security franchises are all betting on the smart home in an economy that puts a premium on data together major players in the smart home space have successfully attracted the attention and pocketbooks of millions of households by touting the virtues of ambient networked technologies as an upgrade to modern domestic life if industry predictions hold nearly half of american houses will be smart by 2024 yet what it means to be smart is still unsettled threshold asks and answers the question how do smart homes communicate cultural values about the role of technology in the 21st century answering this question is time sensitive as the coming years will determine how smart homes are configured who has access to them and what they mean to their owners policy makers technology companies and others invested in these domestic digital platforms the consequences of these decisions are significant because they impact both smart home residents and society at large at present much of the research on smart homes caters either to industry experts or scientists and engineers this literature often describes or evaluates the technical capacities of the smart home or focuses on user interface and design instead heather woods argues we need a sustained cultural analysis of smart homes that considers the socio technical variables gender class income disparity race criminal justice the housing market and the future of both labor and domesticity that give the smart home meaning threshold takes up this challenge from a rhetorical perspective arguing that smart homes are lived material embodiments of the digital cultures in which they are imagined built and used those considerations more often than not are relegated to secondary considerations when in truth they are the most pervasive and consequential factors affecting anyone participating in a smart home ecosystem woods argues that smart homes are spatial manifestations of a phenomenon called living in digitality a cultural condition whereby users engage with technology at every moment of every day using extensive fieldwork at smart homes throughout the usa woods traces how smart homes urge ubiquitous computing as a normalized daily practice readying domestic spaces and their occupants for an increasingly transactional digital future that is largely controlled by corporate interests threshold advances knowledge in three ways by 1 offering definitional tools for identifying and evaluating immersive technologies including but not limited to the smart home 2 identifying three distinct configurations of the smart home according to their domestic and technological functions 3 demonstrating the productive capacity of smart homes and smart devices to influence social life the book highlights the rhetorical force of smart domesticity for rhetorical scholars digital humanists political scientists critical theorists policy makers and residents or prospective residents of smart homes ultimately threshold serves as a toolkit for recognizing and responding to the persistent encroachment of digital technologies in all parts of our lives this book unveils the concept of social love as a kind of karst river that flows through the history of sociology reassessing it as a form criticism by people in everyday life adopting an interdisciplinary perspective this book offers both theoretical and empirical reflections on social love it shows that love is not only central to the human experience but that it can also help to interpret and intervene in social problems such as climate change poverty xenophobia and the post covid crisis recognizing people as actors in social change it explores the idea of love as a key element in the promotion of solidarity and recognition in today s plural and unequal societies based on empirical research on social love conducted through both qualitative and quantitative methods especially in europe and latin america this book explores the social dimension of love providing overviews on key questions and studies on current issues the book is essential reference and resource for researchers students social workers and professionals in social sciences social philosophy anthropology social psychology sociology of emotions and postmodern literature
