this book questions the conventional wisdom that education builds peace by exploring the ways in which ordinary schooling can contribute to intergroup conflict based on fieldwork and comparative historical analysis of rwanda it argues that from the colonial period to the genocide schooling was a key instrument of the state in contributing to the construction awareness collectivization and inequality of ethnic groups in rwanda all factors that underlay conflict the book further argues that today s post genocide schools are dangerously replicating past trends this book is the first to offer an in depth study of education in rwanda and to analyze its role in the genesis of conflict the book demonstrates that to build peace we cannot simply prescribe more education but must understand who has access to schools how schools are set up and what and how they teach in recent years an increasing number of linguists have re examined the question of whether markedness has explanatory power or whether it is a phenomenon that begs explanation itself this volume brings together a collection of articles with a broad range of critical viewpoints on the notion of markedness in phonological theory the contributions span a variety of phonological frameworks and relate to morphosyntax historical linguistics neurolinguistics biolinguistics and language typology this volume will be of particular interest to phonologists of both synchronic and diachronic persuasions and has strong implications for the architecture of grammar with respect to phonology and its interfaces with morphosyntax and phonetics
