from de gaulle onwards france s strategic independence has been predicated on self sufficiency in modern weapons to achieve and maintain the requisite defence industrial base in the context of limited domestic orders paris sought to promote the export of its arms during the cold war this underpinned but was also an expression of france s determination to resist bipolar domination france offered customers around the world an alternative to reliance on one superpower or the other and in doing so it generated the revenue to support an extensive domestic arms industry the end of the cold war ushered in fundamental changes however western defence spending shrank and the global market was turned upside down while france s arms export policy was less affected by human rights concerns than other democracies it was not immune to pressures stemming from the consolidation of europe s defence industrial base and the increased interest of the eu in regulating the arms trade this adelphi book considers how france has responded to changing political and market circumstances in the way that it promotes and controls the export of weapons it examines the rationale for considering a liberal arms export policy as essential to french independence and the institutional arrangements that underpinned this it tracks the dramatic changes in the global arms market since 1990 in terms of demand and market competition and charts the response of the french government to these changes the book underlines how the french machinery of government as a directing force behind the defence industry has been resistant to the notion of export restraint even in the case of sales to authoritarian regimes however it argues that france now faces a dilemma over whether to continue with a long successful course or to moderate its independence through greater collaboration to bolster european integration and better compete globally international trade and investment have enabled many countries in the asia pacific region to boost economic growth and have lifted millions out of poverty as the asia pacific region continues to thrive economically trade and investment barriers are being dissolved and eliminated as countries begin to depend on each other more trade policy is gradually becoming a useful measure to achieve inclusive and sustainable development trade and investment are linked to the environment and social issues hence their impacts are also multi dimensional it has now been recognized that sustainable production and consumption are essential for sustainable development countries realize that they are not able to approach global and regional problems on their own and require cooperation both at the level of government and business as a result the region has been active in concluding regional cooperation frameworks which routinely are centered on trade and investment in the meantime business has forged regional integration through the formation of regional value chains and production networks while governments have paved the way for the expansion of such production networks through the formation of regional trade agreements and economic partnerships thus the asia pacific trade agreement apta which is the oldest preferential trade agreement in the region with a large consumer base can play an important role in filling this gap given a slow progress in the multilateral negotiations in the wto especially when the members have started questioning the utility of the negotiations after 15 years and a lack of consensus on how to move forward the regional trade agreements can play a vital role even if they pose a challenge to the multilateralism selected liberalisation of trade and economy in present time can become a building block for future multilateral negotiations one of the reasons for the surge in these preferential trade agreements is to make binding commitments on wto plus and wto beyond issues while there are many agreements that exist in asia and the pacific there is no such attempt to consolidate them in one umbrella framework understanding the benefits of the consolidation one such initiative was started by escap a few years back the reci initiate for market integration could well be facilitated by apta however it cannot deliver unless it transforms itself in a new generation agreement regional integration and cooperation are also important to meet the 2030 agenda for sustainable development instead of wasting resources in discussing a new institutional framework it would be more effective to use the existing framework and for the asia pacific economies the apta provides an existing institutional platform the cases discussed in this book prepare a ground for the future and it is expected that all the stakeholders member states of escap private sector as well as researchers would benefit from this publication on apta south south regional integration and sustainable development
