the idea that wealthy people use their money to influence things including politics law and media will surprise very few people however as michael s kang and joanna shepherd argue in this readable and rich study of the state judiciary the effect of money on judicial outcomes should disturb and anger everyone in the current system that elects state judges the rich and powerful can spend money to elect and re elect judges who decide cases the way they want free to judge is about how and why money increasingly affects the dispensation of justice in our legal system and what can be done to stop it one of the barriers to action in the past has been an inability to prove that campaign donations influence state judicial decision making in this book kang and shepherd answer that challenge for the first time with a rigorous empirical study of campaign finance and judicial decision making data pairing this with interviews of past and present judges they create a compelling and persuasive account of people like marsha ternus the first iowa state supreme court justice to be voted out of office after her decision in a same sex marriage case the threat of such an outcome and the desire to win reelection results in judges demonstrably leaning towards the interests and preferences of their campaign donors across all cases free to judge is thus able to identify the pieces of our current system that invite bias such as judicial reelection and what reforms should focus on this thoughtful and compellingly written book will be required reading for anybody who cares about creating a more just legal system
