written through both the first and second person singular passionate being takes its author and its reader on a journey that has them thinking of their experience of and belonging to language and the possibility of an instance of the world taking place without prejudice and exclusion at its beginning it brings to its author the question what can you say the responses that ensue turn our attention toward presupposition and about how singularity can be said the book also brings into play among others the work of giorgio agamben it asks us to view both language and the world taking place without presupposition revealing both the political implications and those for living that this vision holds it is a work to be read twice with pleasure and then again challenging the notion of feminism as a unified discourse this book
