first published in 1964 greek tragedy and the modern world begins with the question what is tragedy most discussion assumes some essence of tragedy in certain plays at certain periods and discussion today centres on whether it is possible or desirable for contemporary plays to attend to this essence there is considerable agreement about what this essence of tragedy is but when we examine closely the works of aeschylus sophocles and euripides we find that none of the important aspects of this essence of tragedy applied to them greek tragedies are not tragedy yet if we read or perform them we do discover a special attitude to life which they present by examining each of the works of the three greek masters in turn the author has tried to define what this attitude to life consists of he then turns his attention to dramatists who have attempted with varying degrees of success to present aspects of this attitude in contemporary terms buchner ibsen strindberg miller cocteau gide giraudoux anouilh sartre ghéon and eliot he pays particular attention to such key concepts as myth and discusses the various forms of poetic language used by these writers the author assumes that one cannot criticise literature still less drama except in terms of a complete view of life and goes on to examine the claims of different philosophical systems and methods to provide this he believes that such a view is both possible and desirable in our time and indeed a necessary prerequisite for the emergence of modern tragedy this is a must read for scholars and researchers of greek literature theatre studies and literature in general
