David M. Kreps has developed a text in microeconomics that is both challenging and user friendly. The work is designed for the first year graduate microeconomic theory course and is accessible to advanced undergraduates as well, placing unusual emphasis on modern noncooperative game theory. It provides the student and instructor with a unified treatment of modern microeconomic theory, one that stresses the behavior of the individual actor, consumer or firm, in various institutional settings. The author has taken special pains to explore the fundamental assumptions of the theories and techniques studied, pointing out both strengths and weaknesses. The book begins with an exposition of the standard models of choice and the market, with extra attention paid to choice under uncertainty and dynamic choice. General and partial equilibrium approaches are blended so that the student sees these approaches as points along a continuum. The work then turns to more modern developments. Readers are introduced to noncooperative game theory and shown how to model games and determine solution concepts. Models with incomplete information, the folk theorem, and reputation and bilateral bargaining are covered in depth. Information economics is explored next. A closing discussion concerns firms as organizations and gives readers a taste of transaction cost economics.

The nexus between best practices and student achievement is demonstrated from the Grasp project, discovering how some California charter schools with higher academic achievement showed evidence of a greater number of best practices as measured by performance, governance, education program, human resources, business practices, and facilities. The education program infrastructure surprisingly, technology did not show a correlation for reasons explained in the nexus. Moreover, the nexus is bolstered by administrative innovation and competition theory, serving as foundations for the nexus. The nexus also introduces strategies to implement best practices and process improvements through lean six sigma methods and strategic and action planning the search for the next practice designed to improve education programs is perpetual the significance to accreditation is profound as student achievement measures will require metrics paced to reform movements such as common core standards derived from international settings by the same token quality education will become clearer as edification through international benchmarks such as iso 9000 will promote higher standards of excellence the nexus conclusions have relevance to all school systems since implementing best practices can elevate student achievement the reason is clear the more a school system operates efficiently through best practices and process improvements the more time is available to the school leadership to devote attention to academic achievement as the ultimate product of education and for those invested in school improvement a higher value added education with a higher return on investment
