drawing on his thirty years in newspapers the former editor in chief of the globe and mail examines the crisis of serious journalism in the digital era and searches for ways the invaluable tradition can thrive in a radically changed future john stackhouse entered the newspaper business in a golden age 1980s circulations were huge and wealthy companies lined up for the privilege of advertising in every city s best read pages television and radio could never rival newspapers for hard news analysis and opinion and the papers brand of serious journalism was considered a crucial part of life in a democratic country then came the internet after decades as a globe journalist foreign bureau chief and then editor of its report on business not to mention former scarborough delivery boy he assumed one of the biggest jobs in canadian journalism the globe and mail s editor in chief beginning in 2009 he faced the unthinkable the possible end of not just canada s national newspaper but the steep and steady financial decline of newspapers everywhere a non stop torrent of free digital content stole advertisers and devalued advertising space so quickly that newspapers struggled to finance the serious journalism that distinguished them in a world of buzzfeed huffington post yahoo and innumerable bloggers and citizen journalists meanwhile ambitious online media aspired to the credibility of newspapers the solution was clear if the path to arriving at it was less so the new school needed to meet the old school and the future lay in undiscovered ground between them having led the globe during this period of sudden and radical change stackhouse continues to champion the vital role of great reporting and analysis filled with stories from his three decades in the business mass disruption tracks decisions good and bad examines how some of the world s major newspapers the guardian new york times are learning to cope and lays out strategies for the future of both newspapers and serious journalism wherever it may live are you or your organization going to be in the news do you want to be in the media spotlight and do you know how to deal with it in the news provides an introduction to media relations in canada from a practical and philosophical approach grounded in the latest research on how to work with media it explains current media practices and demonstrates how to take a proactive planned approach to dealing with media first published in 2002 to wide acclaim from media and academia alike the second edition is revised and updated containing two new chapters that outline emerging trends in media relations as well as connecting larger issues in media to its role in modern society in meaningful pasts russell johnston and michael ripmeester explore two strands of identity making among residents of the niagara region in ontario canada first they describe the region s official narratives most of which celebrate the achievements of white settlers with a mix of storytelling rituals and monuments despite their presence in local lore and landmarks these official narratives did not resonate with the nearly one thousand residents who participated in five surveys conducted over eleven years instead participants drew on contemporary people places and events second the authors explore the emergence of niagara s wine industry as a heritage narrative the book shares how the survey participants embraced the industry as a local identifier and indicates how the industry s efforts have rekindled the residents interest in agriculture as a significant element of regional heritage and local identities revealing how the profiles of local narratives and commemorations become entwined with social cultural economic and political power meaningful pasts illuminates the fact that local narratives retain their relevance only if residents find them meaningful in their day to day lives
