this book provides an over view of the key developments in the politics of european union regional policy from the creation of the eec to the present day the discussion of who decides what and to what effect in relation to regional policy is part of the contemporary academic debate about the nature of politics and policy making in the eu bache argues that no single theory can explain the complex politics of eu regional policy making in particular current theories pay insufficient attention to the importance of implementation in shaping policy outcomes the book concludes that the application of different analytical tools at different stages of policy making provides the fullest picture of the politics of eu regional policy this title is published in conjunction with uaces the university association for contemporary european studies uaces web site can be found at uaces.org europeanization has become a major theme within european studies in recent years emphasizing the domestic effects of the eu on its member and applicant states at the same time multilevel governance has emerged as an important concept highlighting shifts both in horizontal relations between state and society and in vertical links between actors at different territorial levels in this state of the art study ian bache traces the relationship between these two key elements considering the extent to which europeanization advances multilevel governance within member states through the requirements of eu cohesion policy bache focuses especially on britain a member state whose political system has been increasingly characterized by multilevel governance since it became an eu member comparing britain s case to that of ten other member states the author distinguishes between the eu s effects in simple polities in which voice influence and power are diffused through multiple levels and modes of governance and in compound polities where voice influence and power are more concentrated bringing together the conceptual tools of multilevel governance and policy networks and developing a framework for using these tools together in future research this clearly written study will be valuable for scholars and students of eu and british politics in recent years the debate on the future institutional shape of the european union has centred on the constitutional treaty and the lisbon treaty as its less ambitious but possibly equally abortive successor the debate has thus neglected the emergence of a wide variety of new and multi level forms of governing the present volume takes stock of these debates and asks critical questions about policy conflicts and the effectiveness and legitimacy of these forms of governance under what conditions can they stand up to the high expectations that are put in them by their supporters the volume offers reflections on the notion of network governance multi level governance and the difficult issue of democratic accountability as well as empirical case studies from the structural funds area as well as from environmental policy broadly conceived
