in the international legal status and protection of environmentally displaced persons a european perspective hélène raghebboom addresses the topical issue of displacement caused by environmental factors and analyses in particular whether affected persons who are unable or unwilling to return to their country of origin due to the severe degradation of their living environment could or in the negative should receive some form of international protection within the european union the author provides a detailed analysis of relevant instruments of refugee law and international human rights law and explores possible future approaches to addressing the phenomenon of environmental displacement ranging from constructive interpretations of existing norms to the allegedly preferable creation of a multidisciplinary sui generis framework

this book offers a unique comparative assessment of the evolution of immigration detention systems in european union member states since the onset of the refugee crisis by applying an analytical framework premised on international human rights law in assessing domestic detention regimes the book reveals the extent to which eu legislation has led to the adoption of laws and practices that may disregard fundamental rights and standards while emphasizing policies and laws adopted in response to the refugee crisis the volume also shows how these policies have evolved and in many cases grown more restrictive even as the crisis has begun to recede from the borders of many european countries to sharpen awareness of contrasting developments across the region the book's country chapters are organised into geographic sections that reveal how variations in migration pressures have in some cases resulted in contrasting detention practices even as the eu directives have sought to harmonise immigration laws a critical focus of the book are the evolving domestic norms related to grounds for detention length of detention non custodial alternatives to detention the treatment of children and conditions of detention with its systematic and comparative assessment of immigration detention regimes across the eu the book will be helpful for both academics and practitioners who seek a comprehensive guide to the evolution of one of today's more important human rights dilemmas states efforts to control global migration
