this book explores why democratization processes in sub saharan africa have made so little progress despite more than two decades of multi party politics on the subcontinent by applying multiple linear regression analyses to a new data set on multi party elections in sub saharan africa the study investigates the relationship between political mobilizations and electoral competitiveness it finds that the more societal groups engage in political mobilizations such as protests and strikes the more competitive elections become based on these results the author argues for a change in the policies of international democracy assistance programs the study's findings suggest that efforts to promote democracy would likely be more successful if international donors focused their support on organizations that have active constituencies and are willing to use their mobilization capacity to address ruling elites with political or socio economic grievances ecce educatrix tua discusses the apostolic letter novo millennio ineunte nunc wherein john paul ii outlined the path the church should adopt in the third millennium the necessity to rediscover the full practical significance of chapter 5 of the dogmatic constitution on the church lumen gentium dedicated to the universal call to holiness nunc 30 is at stake john paul ii stressed that a concrete pedagogy of holiness is required including a spiritual path without which external structures will serve very little purpose nmi 43 the polish pontiff invited ecclesial movements to present their original pedagogy of holiness cf nmi 31 peters highlights the blessed virgin mary as educator in a pedagogy of holiness from the teachings of john paul ii and father joseph kertenich founder of the schoenstatt movement outstanding academic title for 2007 choice magazine this volume studies elections as a core institution of liberal democracy in the context of newly democratizing countries political scientist staffan i lindberg gathers data from every nationally contested election in africa from 1989 to 2003 covering 232 elections in 44 countries he argues that democratizing nations learn to become democratic through repeated democratic behavior even if their elections are often flawed refuting a number of established hypotheses lindberg finds no general negative trend in either the frequency or the quality of african elections rather elections in africa based on his findings are more than just the goal of a transition toward democracy or merely a formal procedure the inception of multiparty elections usually initiates liberalization and repeated electoral activities create incentives for political actors fostering the expansion and deepening of democratic values in addition to improving the democratic qualities of political regimes a sequence of elections tends to expand and solidify de facto civil liberties in society drawing on a wealth of data lindberg makes the case that repetitive elections are an important causal factor in the development of democracy he thus extends rustow s 1970 theory that democratic behavior produces democratic values mobilizing islam explores how and why islamic groups succeeded in galvanizing educated youth into politics under the shadow of egypt s authoritarian state offering important and surprising answers to a series of pressing questions under what conditions does mobilization by opposition groups become possible in authoritarian settings why did islamist groups have more success attracting recruits and overcoming governmental restraints than their secular rivals and finally how can islamist mobilization contribute to broader and more enduring forms of political change throughout the muslim world moving beyond the simplistic accounts of islamic fundamentalism offered by much of the western media mobilizing islam offers a balanced and persuasive explanation of the islamic movement s dramatic growth in the world s largest arab state
