This profile provides a concise and policy relevant overview of health and the health system in Lithuania as part of the broader series of the State of Health in the EU Country Profiles. It provides a short synthesis of the health status in the country, the determinants of health, focussing on behavioural risk factors, the organisation of the health system and the effectiveness, accessibility and resilience of the health system. This profile is the joint work of the OECD and the European Observatory on Health Systems and Policies in co-operation with the European Commission.

Whether there is a public health need for the containment and response to swine flu or an individual need to access health care across the border for a hip operation to alleviate pain, the EU has an increasingly powerful role in the field of human health. Health law and policy is deeply tied into fundamental rights, bioethics and values with important implications for individuals. However, it is also an expansive area of economic regulation of social and state arrangements. The growing role of the EU in human health law and policy is contested, particularly as it has implications for the fundamental rights and values that are enshrined in national health law and policy. This book outlines through case studies how the expansion of EU power is taking place through law and policy in both public health and health care, how law and policy in the field of human health has developed, who are the institutional actors involved and what is the impact of these developments for fundamental rights.
