dries de crom intends to stimulate the cross fertilization of septuagint studies and translation studies particularly the theoretical framework of descriptive translation studies dts it engages with concepts and theories from dts in order to demonstrate their applicability to the study of the septuagint the aim is not to replace the established methods of septuagint studies but rather to show that they are fully compatible with descriptive approaches to translation the greater part of the volume is dedicated to a meticulous verse by verse comparison between the lxx and mt texts of song of songs as there is at present no full critical edition of the greek texts of song of songs due attention is given to the most important witnesses to the pre hexaplaric text the textual study engages with matters of translation technique textual criticism linguistic interference and the interpretation of lxx song of songs on the basis of this textual analysis the volume explores the question of kaige theodotion and lxx song of song s relation to it as well as the peculiar textual linguistic profile of lxx songs of songs against the background of translational norms interference interlanguage and literary code this volume deals with the correspondence between augustine and jerome discussing the way the letters were handed down to posterity as well as their contents in the first part it is shown that jerome and augustine both published a collection of the correspondence in addition a list of manuscripts is given the second part deals with the conflict between augustine and jerome not only their discussion whether the hebrew bible or the septuagint should be considered canonically authoritative for the church but also their argument on the right exegesis of the quarrel between peter and paul in antioch whether christians should observe the jewish ceremonial laws gal 2 11 14 the book is of particular interest for scholars in patristic and jewish studies giving a fresh approach to this important correspondence the question of the extent to which the septuagint reflects an evolution in messianic belief in comparison with the masoretic text has come into prominence in recent years and in view of the role played by messianism in jewish belief of the late second temple period and in early christianity it seemed very appropriate that the septuagint and messianism should be chosen as the theme of the 2004 colloquium biblicum lovaniense this volume contains the papers given at the colloquium which are concerned both with methodological issues and with the interpretation of specific texts in practice the majority of the texts in the septuagint for which a messianic interpretation has been claimed the papers are very far from all reflecting the same approach and it has frequently happened that the same texts have been treated by different contributors from very different viewpoints but the fact such different viewpoints are expressed is a proper reflection of the complexity of the issues involved in the question of the extent of messianic belief in the septuagint and of the fact that the question requires a nuanced answer it is in any case hoped that the varied approaches reflected in the papers will serve to make clear the underlying reasons for the differences between those who take a minimalist and those who take a maximalist view on the subject of the septuagint and messianism

the septuagint is the term commonly used to refer to the corpus of early greek versions of hebrew scriptures the collection is of immense importance in the history of both judaism and christianity the renderings of individual books attest to the religious interests of the substantial jewish population of egypt during the hellenistic and roman periods and to the development of the greek language in its koine phase the narrative ascribing the septuagint s origins to the work of seventy translators in alexandria attained legendary status among both jews and christians the septuagint was the version of scripture most familiar to the writers of the new testament and became the authoritative old testament of the greek and latin churches in the early centuries of christianity it was itself translated into several other languages and it has had a continuing influence on the style and content of biblical translations the oxford handbook of the septuagint features contributions from leading experts in the field considering the history and manuscript transmission of the version and the study of translation technique and textual criticism the collection provides surveys of previous and current research on individual books of the septuagint corpus on alternative jewish greek versions the christian daughter translations and reception in early jewish and christian writers the handbook also includes several conversations with related fields of interest such as new testament studies liturgy and art history ekaterin matusova offers a new approach to the old problems of interpretation of the letter of aristeas chapter 1 deals with the question of the structure of the narrative matusova argues that at the time of aristeas compositions of the kind of the reworked pentateuch or rewritten bible were circulating in egypt in parallel with the lxx and were a source of interpretations of the hebrew text different from the lxx and of specific combinations of subjects popular in second temple judaism in particular matusova further argues that the leading principle of the composition of the letter is that of the reworked deuteronomy where subjects referring to the idea of following the law among the gentiles were grouped together the analysis is based on a broad circle of jewish sources including philo of alexandria and documents from the qumran library the principle of the composition discovered in this part of the study is referred to as the jewish paradigm chapter 2 offers a new interpretation of the frame story in the narrative i e of the story of the translation in the strict sense matusova shows that two paradigms are skilfully combined in this split story the jewish one based on the bible and the greek one which involves greek grammatical theory she further argues that the story when read in terms of greek grammar turns out to be a consistent story not of the translation but of the correction of the lxx which is important for our understanding of the early history of the translation the analysis involves extensive excursions into greek grammatical theory including a discussion of aristotle dionysius thrax and other hellenistic grammarians in chapter 3 matusova tries to find the reason for the combination of these two paradigms namely the jewish biblical paradigm and the greek grammatical ones and to interpret their interconnected meaning by placing it in the broad historical context of the ptolemaic state this multidisciplinary study takes a fresh look at judean history and biblical literature in the late fourth and third centuries bce in a major reappraisal of this era the contributions to this volume depict it as one in which critical changes took place until recently the period from alexander s conquest in 332 bce to the early years of seleucid domination following antiochus iii s conquest in 198 bce was reputed to be poorly documented in material evidence and textual production buttressing the view that the era from late persian to hasmonean times was one of seamless continuity biblical scholars believed that no literary activity belonged to the hellenistic age and archaeologists were unable to refine their understanding because of a lack of secure chronological markers however recent studies are revealing this period as one of major social changes and intense literary activity historians have shed new light on the nature of the hellenistic empires and the relationship between the central power and local entities in ancient imperial settings and the redating of several biblical texts to the third century bce challenges the traditional periodization of judean history bringing together hellenistic history the archaeology of judea and biblical studies this volume appraises the early hellenistic period anew as a time of great transition and change and situates judea within its broader regional and transregional imperial contexts as part of a joint project of bilateral scientific cooperation between the katholieke universiteit leuven belgium and university of stellenbosch south africa the centre for septuagint studies and textual criticism faculty of theology k u leuven organised a specialists symposium on the septuagint translation this scholarly meeting took place from 4 to 6 december 2006 at the leuven faculty of theology research unit biblical studies the symposium s aim was to survey contemporary research within the realm of the translations of the septuagint therefore the most important septuagint translation projects were confronted with each other from the perspective of their objective and methodology as well as with regard to their concrete application in particular cases or examples the meeting was exclusively intended for specialists in the field the present book contains the proceedings of this symposium it offers the full text of the contributions by j cook r sollamo h ausloos b lemmelijn g dorival k hauspie c dogniez m karrer w kraus e bons h j fabry a pietersma d büchner c boyd taylor h van rooy j naudé a piquer p torijano julio trebolle barrera and n fernández marcos in this way it reflects the views of leading voices in contemporary research on the septuagint s translation and thus confronts different methodological perspectives on a most intriguing research topic prior to any attempt to study a text at the literary level the textual material itself has to be carefully established it is for this reason that the present volume is devoted to a detailed text critical study of the physical text of the plagues narrative in exod 7 14 11 10 in the first chapter the author formulates a number of prolegomena relating to textual criticism as a discipline the extant textual material the terminology employed and the methodological model that serves as the basis of this study in the second chapter data provided by the various textual forms of the plagues narrative in exod 7 14 11 10 namely mt lxx samp 4qpaleoexodm 4qpaleogen exod 2qexoda 4qexodc 4qgen exoda and 4qexodj are registered and described the extant textual versions themselves are presented in the form of a synopsis added as an appendix to this book the third and final chapter offers the text critical evaluation of all text relevant variants
