this final volume of paulson s magnificent biography takes hogarth from his fifty third year to his death at sixty seven the period opens with hogarth at the height of his powers a figure of influence with the literary generation of richardson and fielding he was known to an unprecedented spectrum of english men and women at this point hogarth chose to philosophise about art extending his successful practice in aesthetic theory in the analysis of beauty partly in reaction to the agitation for an art academy based on the french model partly out of the conviction that his art required verbal validation and partly some contemporaries felt out of hubris and at the same moment the hard won fabric of his reputation began to unravel a new generation had arisen some friendly and interested in building on hogarth s achievement but some determined to supersede what seemed to be in england of the 1750s too insular a figure to represent english art and culture to the world the consequences given his own doggedness and the shifting allegiances of former friends were tumultuous and darkened the last years of hogarth s life pushing him to extremes of theory practise and self justification for the first time in his career he found himself apparently out of step with his times although these cannot be called happy years they elicited from hogarth some of his most brilliant and audacious works in writing as well as painting and engraving in many ways he had already by 1750 anticipated the reynold s generation pointing the way into the promised land but disagreeing over the nature of that promise more than the earlier two volumes art and politics focuses on the reception of hogarth and his works the paranoid strain in hogarth responded to the notion of being attacked and this also reflected his increasing fear of the general audience he had himself helped to create as no longer a public but a crowd
