the islamic tradition has always been flexible changing over time and constantly adapting to the different societies muslims find themselves in few muslims today would abide by the fatwa against the printing press under the ottomans moreover although islamic law legislates for slavery and child marriage only a vanishing minority of muslims consider these practices acceptable today and some will even argue that islam never permitted them yet some issues like the prohibition on female led prayer and female interfaith marriage seem curiously impervious to change why is that through a mixture of interviews with ordinary muslims in texas and critical analysis of contemporary and historical scholarship shehnaz haqqani demonstrates the gendered dimensions of change and negotiation in islamic tradition she argues that a reliance on a mostly male scholarly consensus means that the tradition preserves male privilege at the expense of justice for muslim women
