in recent years a set of radical new approaches to public policy has been developing these approaches drawing on discursive analysis and participatory deliberative practices have come to challenge the dominant technocratic empiricist models in policy analysis in his major new book frank fischer brings together this new work for the first time and critically examines it in an accessible way he describes the theoretical methodological and political requirements and implications of the new post empiricist approach to public policy the volume includes a discussion of the social construction of policy problems the role of interpretation and narrative analysis in policy inquiry the dialectics of policy argumentation and the uses of participatory policy analysis the book will be required reading for anyone studying researching or formulating public policy adopting a critical perspective this book explores how the concept of gender equality is stretched and bent in different ways according to the intervention of policy actors and assesses the consequences of the processes the policy framing this open access book provides the first in depth study of the development of federal gender equality politics and policy in australia from the 1970s to the present day australia has a history of gender equality innovation including granting women s suffrage long before equivalent countries from the 1970s on it became the first country to introduce a women s adviser femocrats feminist bureaucrats and gender responsive budgeting but then fell behind partly due to the influence of anglosphere neoliberalism however the albanese government has pledged to make australia a world leader in gender equality again the book situates australia in an international context assessing the useful though sometimes salutary lessons which the australian experience provides it engages with key literature including feminist political theory discursive framing analysis gendered public policy analysis lgbtiq issues path dependency and gender and leadership it will interest academics undergraduate and postgraduate researchers public policy experts and practitioners and a broader readership interested in issues of gender equality the book makes innovative contributions to the study of the politics of gender equality policy addressing what a gender equality policy agenda could look like if the needs of women in all their intersectional social diversity were the driving force in doing so it addresses a range of issues that are impacting the future of women including an ongoing pandemic technology education and training agendas issues of sovereign capability securitisation climate change and the growth of campaigns that oppose so called gender ideology it explores how current government agendas such as the focus on wellbeing could be made even more gender inclusive finally the book suggests that australia as a multicultural but predominantly western settler colonial society situated in the asia pacific has some potentially unique insights to offer in a world facing major geoeconomic and geopolitical change integration and disintegration are the two poles of the economic political and security discourse in an area the balkans and southern eastern europe see which over the past fifteen years has been the stage of dramatic events integration and disintegration are the two dimensions of an identity problem that many feel the area can solve by joining the european union and diffusing its many conflicts in the peaceful waters of europeanisation however quite apart from the obvious point that the accession process cannot be taken for granted in relation to many of the new balkan countries integration into the eu can be argued as having been and still being a further catalyst for disintegration this book assesses the extent to which the integration of the balkans into the eu will either foster or discourage the integration of the area itself as well as the winners and losers under this process the book addresses the topic in a multidisciplinary way the contributions are the result of a fruitful co operation between scholars from the balkans the uk and the us the book tackles the issue of the relation between the eu and the balkans in all its controversial and contradictory dimensions this definitive handbook addresses the current lack of research into european policymaking and development using an interpretive perspective questioning areas that mainstream approaches tend to neglect contributors target the ways in which ideas arguments and discourses shape policies in the institutional context of the eu some cities manage to mobilize innovation potentials and respond to challenges such as demographic change and immigration as well as economic restructuring while others do not this book solves this problem by answering the following question what are the conditions for the development of local innovation in order to identify these conditions the book explores case study cities which are perceived as success cases of local innovation by the respective local community and sometimes also nationally or internationally the conditions for local innovations are not sought primarily in economic social or institutional circumstances instead this book focuses on the communicative interactions by which local actors develop locally embedded knowledge or a specific social imaginary about those circumstances as well as the constraints and opportunities deriving from them the authors focus on a comparative case study of ten cities bensheim frankfurt kassel leipzig and offenbach in germany and athens chania elefsina kalamata and thessaloniki in greece the book is based on content analysis of policy documents and local newspapers as well as in depth interviews with key local actors this book will be of interest to scholars and students of political science and policy analysis as well as sociology geography urban studies and planning it will also interest local politicians and bureaucrats concerned with achieving innovation in cities success and failure are key to any consideration of public policy but there have been remarkably few attempts to assess systematically the various dimensions and complex nature of policy success this important new text fills the gap by developing a systematic framework and offering an entirely new way of introducing students to policy analysis the editor brings together specialists from critical discourse analysis and critical approaches to communications history literature cultural studies media sociology politics and international relations to discuss the discursive construction of ethnic national and regional identities despite the fact that policy is increasingly led by the mass media social policy research has so far focused on variables and quantitative measurement rather than cultural meanings and moral welfare debates taking a critical examination of social policy on public housing by way of illustration this book demonstrates how critical discourse theory can be used in applied research it shows how the theory and method of critical discourse analysis can be worked together in an intricate and accessible way the goal of this book is to examine some of the major foreign policy debates in the united kingdom and the united states in the period from 1992 to 2008 from the end of the cold war and the aftermath of the first gulf war to the 2008 american presidential election the first president bush spoke in 1991 of a 'new world order' which seemed to mean an american hegemony the united states was now the world's only superpower although a superpower afflicted with weaknesses especially economic ones but by 2008 the 'new world order' did not seem so new or so strongly american the period saw the terrorist attacks against the u s of 11 september 2001 military problems for the superpower in afghanistan and iraq and by the summer of 2008 near economic collapse in all of these developments britain shared to a lesser or a greater extent it is hoped that this book will shed an important light both on each nation and on the so called 'special relationship' between the two furthermore this book is also not specifically concerned with policy or how policy is made but with the debate around policy and the rhetoric used to present different points of view 'the special relationship' between the us and britain remains an enigmatic ever changing but still very powerful factor in world politics as an examination of their foreign policy discourses reveals from the perspective of culture and values few western countries are as different as the united kingdom and the us with very few exceptions 'the foreign policies of gladstone and tony blair and churchillian rhetoric unmatched by his supremely realpolitical politics' british governments abhor talking about values and ideals the british cultural peculiarity is to dismiss ideology and values as packaging only to be caught by surprise time and again that they cannot do 'business with herr hitler' or that people kill each other for their values religions constructed identities and ideologies most american governments by contrast have had ideological and moral crusades embroidered on their banners in their foreign policy there is a convergence with britain when both proclaim that all they are doing is in their self interest but the americans unashamedly assume that what is good for america is good for the world while the british discourse with the uk's decline since 1945 rarely goes that far as an analysis of their discourses reveals the 'special relationship' is thus clearly founded on something either deeper or more superficial than shared culture or values this volume sheds light on this surprising fact in most illuminating ways and lori maguire's achievement in bringing together these examinations is praiseworthy indeed 'prof beatrice heuser university of reading is east asia heading towards war this text makes a case for a new theoretical approach called analytical eclecticism by the authors to the study of asian security female activists around the globe have long used the political opportunities afforded by constitutional reform to further gender equality and women s participation in politics this timely and accessible volume addresses the way in which changes introduced by devolved governance in wales have transformed the role of women in contemporary welsh politics and presented a new phase in the history of welsh women s activism based on original interviews with participants as well as a range of secondary sources women politics and constitutional change examines the innovations background and effects that have led the new welsh legislature to the second highest proportion of women representatives in all of europe and the pro devolution rhetoric of inclusiveness that opened the way the concept of recognition and its relationship to the way we theorise identity and justice has emerged as part of an important debate in contemporary political and social theory with contributions from nancy fraser and international commentators this new collection examines key theoretical and practical problems of â recognitionâ tm in politics beyond important normative issues in social theory such as how cultural claims to difference may be justly accommodated in liberal polities it addresses a range of practical problems in which a politics of recognition approach casts new light on old conflicts and tensions examining these problems within the context of processes of globalisation and increasing cultural diversity organised into three sections recognition in politics theory policy and practice analyses new theoretical directions the challenges of managing multicultural societies and social policy case studies featuring a recent paper by professor nancy fraser based on her 2004 spinoza lecture this collection examines core issues in contemporary debates over recognition extending these debates in new and significant ways the contributors extend the literature on recognition by applying the theory to practical contemporary political problems these papers reveal the capacity of the recognition paradigm to generate new insights into political problems but also the limitations of the conceptâ tm s theoretical purview together these commentaries offer an invaluable road map to the most recent scholarship on recognition
