this powerful book shows how poor countries can ignite growth without waiting for global action or the creation of ideal local conditions this book is about indigenous ways of farming in northern Malawi in the face of modernization and globalization pressures. It also impacts modernization and globalization in relation to agriculture and environment in the developing countries, laying bare their impacts on smallholder farmers, agriculture in general, industry and the environment.

this book presents paths developing countries can pursue in order to reclaim their ability to take action and improve people's living conditions in the long term. According to dominant economic theory, markets are the essential engines of growth and poverty reduction in developing countries. However, the track record so far is disappointing. On the other hand, poor countries which are exposed to the dynamics of global capitalism have little chance to implement alternative development strategies. Policy actions for a fairer income distribution or for more public investment run the risk of being punished by financial markets and capital flight. The book presents solutions to these issues, considering key economic foundations and outlining feasible development strategies. It is therefore a must-read for policy makers and practitioners working on fighting global poverty as well as scholars and students of economics interested in a better understanding of development economics, economic growth and financial economics.

The publication prepared as a contribution to the BAPA 40 conference delves into what the future of South-South cooperation holds for developing countries and how it can be reenergized and revitalized as a unique area of development cooperation given the trajectory of South-South cooperation over the last 40 years. The way forward needs to be traced, particularly in important areas of work like regional cooperation and digital industrialization. Section 1 of the report looks at the evidence behind the so-called 'rise of the south' to document the qualitative and quantitative changes observed in south south cooperation over the past four decades highlighting that while south south cooperation has intensified its impact remains uneven and incomplete section 2 looks at south south cooperation s link to the means of implementation for the sustainable development goals particularly with respect to trade and development issues drawing on an example addressing sustainable development goal 7 to highlight how south south cooperation can provide critical solutions to the south s development challenges section 3 examines policy options in a number of domains that can help improve south south cooperation drawing from a wide range of unctad experience section 4 looks at the new landscape of southern development finance actors and how developing countries can draw on this new emerging source of south south cooperation to finance connectivity structural transformation and industrialization section 5 explores key and emerging areas for south south cooperation including regional cooperation building productive capacity and responsible investment section 6 looks at best practices in south south cooperation drawn from unctad technical cooperation experiences section 7 looks at the role that south south cooperation can play in light of new technologies in particular related to so called fourth industrial revolution technologies
