This book is the culmination of many years of research by a scientist renowned for his work in this field. It contains a compilation of the data dealing with the known stratigraphic ranges of varied behaviors, chiefly animal with a few plant and fungal and coevolved relations. A significant part of the data consists of frozen behavior, i.e., those in which an organism has been preserved while actually doing something, as contrasted with the interpretations of behavior of an organism deduced from functional morphology. Important as the latter may be, the conclusions drawn from this compilation suggest that both behaviors and coevolved relations appear infrequently following which there is relative fixity of the relation, i.e., two rates of evolution: very rapid and essentially zero. This conclusion complies well with the author's prior conclusion that community evolution followed the same rate pattern; in fact, communities are regarded here as in large part expressions of both behavior and coevolved relations rather than as random aggregates controlled almost wholly by varied unrelated physical parameters tracked by organisms, i.e., the concept that communities have no biologic reality being merely statistical abstractions. The book is illustrated throughout with more than 400 photographs and drawings. It will be of interest to ethologists, evolutionists, parasitologists, paleontologists, and palaeobiologists at research and post-graduate levels.

In business, the right behaviours matter but getting it right is tricky even when we acknowledge the need to change what we do and how we do it. Life has a habit of getting in the way, upsetting even the best laid plans and just how do we manage those situations that can provoke even the most rational among us into behaving in ways we would rather forget? Triggers confronts head on the challenges of behaviour and change, looking at the external factors or triggers both negative and positive that affect our behaviours. Our awareness of when we need to change our willingness or otherwise to do so and our ability to see the change through drawing on his unparalleled experience as an international executive educator and coach. Marshall Goldsmith invites us to understand how our own beliefs and the environments in which we operate can trigger negative behaviours or a resistance to the need to change but he also offers up some simple practical advice to help us navigate the negative and make the most of the triggers that will help us to sustain positive change
