in a world where physical labour seems to disappear from dominant public narratives embodied labour offers an in depth interdisciplinary analysis of the bodily experiences of work and their significance as elements of European cultural heritage this collection examines the physical dimension of labour across various European locations from Estonian oil shale mines through Norwegian ironworks to state agricultural farms in Poland together the chapters explore how the rhythms of physical labour shaped landscapes identities and communities whilst also addressing issues of representation in museums literature and art and the challenges of conveying bodily experiences to contemporary audiences the authors challenge linear narratives about the development of work showing that physical labour has not disappeared but rather changed its character becoming less visible more fragmented and marginalised in public narratives the volume restores dignity and significance to these experiences treating the working body not merely as a tool of production but also as a carrier of memory identity and knowledge embodied labour is of interest to students and scholars from various disciplines from history and anthropology through heritage studies to philosophy as well as anyone interested in the cultural social and historical dimensions of labour in europe chapter 10 of this book is freely available as a downloadable open access pdf at taylorfrancis.com under a creative commons attribution non commercial no derivatives cc by nc nd 4.0 international license in the work of music celia applegate examines the cultural history of austro german music through the lens of labor from the 1648 peace of westphalia to the third reich she explores the working world of music and musicians the various jobs they performed the work music did in society the observations and commentaries of contemporaries on the shape and function of musical life and the work of organizing music making both amateur and professional at a time when ideas of absolute music and music as leisure were both on the rise writing about music tended to obscure these practical matters here applegate reflects on how an intensely musical society organized and understood the ubiquitous activity that underpinned it while heteronormativity continues to permeate nearly all threads of the socio cultural fabric several early twenty first century german films offer insight into how we might challenge that dominance and disrupt its linear construction of time examining the fluidity of time in eight contemporary films of the berlin school untimely bodies untimely aesthetics foregrounds how queer conceptualizations of temporality can engage notions of subjectivity relationality and intimacy in visual representations each film depicts figures that grapple with an unattainable desire for connection placed in landscapes shaped by hegemonic heteronormative intimacies and a linear temporal organization of life that conforms to mainstream traditional rhythms and milestones simone pfleger proposes a new model for viewing non normative relationality and intimacies using the concept of untimeliness as an analytical framework for examining content and aesthetics in these films untimeliness provides an alternative to the romanticization of progress by charting how the filmic figures understand themselves and relate to one another in various spheres work love sex home family and self ultimately pfleger shows how the texts uncover a temporary promise of breaking free from restrictive social structures even as they make clear that this schism cannot and should not be permanent by proposing time as a critical lens through which to investigate our relationships and intimacies untimely bodies untimely aesthetics offers a new way to think about film and encourages moviegoers to turn the analysis back toward themselves and their own desires expectations assumptions and adherence to or deviation from normative narratives in their own lives mary wigman martha graham merce cunningham are key choreographers of the 20th 21st centuries whose rhythmic innovations challenge established norms of energy usage in their socio cultural contexts enabling their contemporaries to engage differently with dominant economies of energy
