since the publication of Dracula in 1897 Bram Stoker's original creation has been a source of inspiration for artists, writers, and filmmakers from Universal's early black and white films and Hammer's technicolor representations that followed. Iterations of Dracula have been cemented in mainstream cinema. This anthology investigates and explores the far larger body of work coming from sources beyond mainstream cinema, reinventing Dracula, Draculas, vampires, and other undead forms. Assembles provocative essays that examine Dracula films and their movement across borders of nationality, sexuality, ethnicity, gender, and genre. Since the 1920s, the essays analyze the complexity Dracula embodies outside the conventional landscape of films with which the vampire is typically associated, focusing on Dracula and Dracula type characters in film, anime, and literature from predominantly non-Anglo markets. This anthology offers unique perspectives that seek to ground depictions and experiences of Dracula within a larger political, historical, and cultural framework.

Werewolf: The Apocalypse is about anger over the loss of what the shapeshifting Garou hold dearest. Gaia, the earth itself, corruption from without and within has caused the destruction not only of the Garou's environment but also of their families, friends, and culture, which extends in an unbroken line to the very dawn of life. No matter how righteously the Garou hold themselves, no matter how they prey on their destroyers, the corruption spreads. Now the time for reconciliation is past. This grave insult against Gaia can end in only one way: blood, betrayal, and rage. Combines Caerns, places of power, and rage across Russia.

Central to every vampire story is the undead's need for human blood, but equally compelling is the human ingestion of vampire blood, which often creates a bond. This blood connection suggests two primal, natural desires: breastfeeding and communion with God through a blood covenant. This analysis of vampire stories explores the benefits of the bonding experiences of breastfeeding and Christian and vampire narratives, arguing that modern readers and viewers are drawn to this genre because of our innate fascination with the relationship between human and maker.
