the unresolved limits of the post capitalist city give rise to interventions in the city and the contemporary landscape in which the planner has to rely on a knowledge of other fields the inevitable multidisciplinary activity at these frontiers has been an object of study during recent decades this book brings together these reflections and some of their achievements in projects whose common denominator is their condition of marginality of contiguity with prior structures with which they try to establish connections and continuities the four parts into which the book is divided make reference to projectural policies conditioned by work on the boundaries of the pre existing and to the interpretation of their settings stretches of water infrastructures cultural and artificial natures analysed here are border zones edges frontiers and fringes of the contemporary city with itself with nature and with the boundaries between the natural and the colonised landscape today the existence of natural elements such as sky mountain jungles coastal area untouched natural zones water and deserts have brought many meaningful ideas to the minds of the urban designers and city dwellers the importance of these elements lies in the fact that they are free from tension busyness and mental pressure which are the gifts of civilization to human being dez river can be a potential tourism attractor to entertain people and can decrease the stress of living in a city it also can have a beautiful view and boost the quality of life with the acceleration of urbanization the functions of urban rivers are gradually weakened the river channels are buried and the urban characteristics are lost when we are designing urban river ecological landscapes ecological concepts need to be introduced and the strategy of sustainable development needs to be adopted for the regulating of rivers this book analyzes the current situation of urban river ecological landscapes discusses its practical problems and proposes the solution for its sustainable development in order to improve its design
