steve reece proposes that the author of luke acts was trained as a youth in the primary and secondary greek educational curriculum typical of the eastern mediterranean during the roman imperial period where he gained familiarity with the classical and hellenistic authors whose works were the focus of study he makes a case for luke s knowledge of these authors internally by spotlighting the density of allusions to them in the narrative of luke acts and externally by illustrating from contemporary literary papyrological and artistic evidence that the works of these authors were indeed widely known in the eastern mediterranean at the time of the composition of luke acts not only in the schools but also among the general public reece begins with a thorough examination of the greek educational system during the hellenistic and roman imperial periods emphasizing that the educational curriculum was very homogeneous at least at the primary and secondary levels and that children growing up anywhere in the eastern mediterranean could expect to receive quite similar educations his close examination of the greek text of luke acts has turned up echoes allusions and quotations of several of the very authors that were most prominently featured in the school curriculum homer aesop euripides plato and aratus this reinforces the view that luke along with other writers of the new testament lived in a cultural milieu that was influenced by classical and hellenistic greek literature and that he was not averse to invoking that literature when it served his theological and literary purposes the tracer s goals are to identify the source of a quotation to find or to produce detailed citation based on a reliable edition of the work to find an authoritative text of the passage being traced and to do all this in the shortest time possible and with the least possible amount of effort
