scapegoating violence seen as providing the initial stability for our species to emerge and consolidate hardly seems compatible with christian belief in god s good creation with violence only appearing after a subsequent fall the brilliant but controversial theologian john milbank has long raised this concern about girard grounded in a remarkably sophisticated though seldom fathomed philosophical theology unpacking milbank s program along with girard s recasting of continental philosophy in light of mimetic theory cowdell finds a way between two apparently irreconcilable positions with irenic spirit but analytic tenacity he probes for ways through milbank s arguments while pressing on growth points in girard s cowdell s proposals involve reframing divine creation in light of salvation history reimagining divine participation by thinking christ and evolution together and developing a semiotic approach to mimetic theory that delivers ontological peace hermeneutically cowdell shows how girard s vision of human transformation through faith in christ reveals a different world beyond ontological violence while preserving the divine participation that milbank champions
