mark laird offers a wealth of visual and literary materials to revolutionize our understanding of the english landscape garden as a powerful cultural expression the eighteenth century phenomenon of the english landscape garden was so widespread that even today when so much has been built over or otherwise changed examples remain throughout england although seemingly natural the english landscape was generally the result of considerable effort contrivance and design skill the glorious outcome of the art that conceals art taking many forms the landscape garden might involve digging lakes raising or leveling hills or planting vast numbers of trees whatever was required to show nature to best advantage richly illustrated throughout this book uncovers the complex multi layered and wide ranging story of the landscape garden in england examines eighteenth century french and english landscape gardens as representations of nationalist expression between 1937 and 1938 garden designer christopher tunnard published a series of articles in the british architectural review that rejected the prevailing english landscape style inspired by the principles of modernist art and japanese aesthetics tunnard called for a new technique in garden design that emphasized an integration of form and purpose the functional garden avoids the extremes both of the sentimental expressionism of the wild garden and the intellectual classicism of the formal garden he wrote it embodies rather a spirit of rationalism and through an aesthetic and practical ordering of its units provides a friendly and hospitable milieu for rest and recreation tinnard's magazine pieces were republished in book form as Gardens in the Modern Landscape in 1938 and a revised second edition was issued a decade later taken together these articles constituted a manifesto for the modern garden its influence evident in the work of such figures as Lawrence Halprin Philip Johnson and Edward Larrabee Barnes long out of print the book is here reissued in a facsimile of the 1948 edition accompanied by a contextualizing foreword by John Dixon Hunt Gardens in the Modern Landscape heralded a sea change in the evolution of twentieth century design and it also anticipated questions of urban sprawl historic preservation and the dynamic between the natural and built environments available once more to students practitioners and connoisseurs it stands as a historical document and an invitation to continued innovative thought about landscape architecture it is said that the only great aesthetic contribution made to the arts by the English is the landscape garden in England in the eighteenth century the conventional formal gardens planned on a rigidly geometric basis and owing much to the influence of Andre Le Notre Louis XIV's great designer at Versailles were within a comparatively short period swept away so thoroughly that only a handful remain in recognizable form today and they were replaced by gardens of the type the French called le jardin anglais this book explains the factors that caused this revolution how English aristocrats making the grand tour of Europe wanted their estates to resemble the classical landscapes depicted by continental painters how the attitude of cultured people towards rugged countryside and untamed nature changed from fear and hatred to romantic awe how political dislike of the power of the French monarchy led to a reaction against the French style of gardening Mr Hadfield quotes from Addison and Pope who inveighed against the formal style and advocated gardens more in sympathy with nature and he follows the development of the English style at Castle the pioneering personalities both landowners men such as the Earl of Carlisle Viscount Cobham and Henry Hoare and those they employed Charles Bridgeman William Kent Lancelot Brown Humphry Repton the widespread work of Capability Brown and Repton can still be seen in many places today but they were not without their critics amongst these Richard Payne Knight and Uvedale Price condemned the bareness of their landscapes and proposed more colorful and picturesque planting the influence of Knight and Price is clear in the great gardens created in the twentieth century such as Sheffield Park and Bodnant and Mr Hadfield concludes with an account of these and other modern versions of the English landscape garden publisher

Charles Bridgeman was a key figure in the establishment of le jardin anglais that remarkable English invention which was to sweep 18th century Europe Bridgeman's role in the transition from the geometric layouts of the early 1700s to the freer designs of Capability Brown was a crucial one his activities as royal gardener to George II and Queen Caroline embraced Hampton Court Kensington Gardens Hyde Park and Richmond while for private patrons he was active at Claremont Eastbury Wimpole Marble Hill and a host of other country houses the english love affair with the landscape garden reached its height in the eighteenth century when the creation of some of our greatest gardens set a stylistic lead which continental europe was eager to follow in this informed and entertaining book timothy mowl reveals how this development in garden style came about through an interaction between the garden owners who had a vision of what these gardens might become and the professionals who had the expertise to realise this vision technologies and discoveries were exchanged and theories were absorbed popularised and then discarded in a fascinating sequence of action and reaction it was a mould breaking revolutionary period in garden history mowl takes the reader on a fascinating journey to the magnificent gardens at chiswick stowe castle howard painshill stourhead and an astonishing host of lesser edens and casts a fresh and illuminating perspective on the great age of the english arcadia 1620 1820

the landscape garden is arguably britain s greatest contribution to western art establishing an artificial style of garden that has defined what we consider to be a natural environment this is the perfect introduction to the subject between 1715 and 1750 a group of politicians and poets farmers and businessmen heiresses and landowners began to experiment with the phenomenon that was to become the english landscape garden arguably the greatest british art form ever invented these gardens were built to charm and delight to shock and inspire all who visited that these gardens including castle howard stowe painshill and rousham are still so popular with visitors today is a testament to the innovation and passion of this extraordinary group of eccentrics and visionaries the arcadian friends takes a highly engaging perspective on the politics and culture of england during the enlightenment at the same time it will be required reading for the legions of fans of the great gardens of england tim richardson introduces us to a period of political and personal intrigue where fantastic biblical landscapes competed for space with temples to sexual freedom and where the installation of a water feature was a political act the arcadian friends tells the story of a collection of fascinating characters whose influence changed the landscape of britain for ever
