the book proposes a paradigm shift in language planning and language policy in africa for the past fifty years the dominant model has been the hegemonic model whereby a language of wider communication lwc is imposed on minority languages it is now time for a paradigm shift in favor of a more egalitarian model in which all the languages spoken in the same country irrespective of their size are planned the paradigm shift concerns four critical areas status planning cost benefit planning acquisition planning and corpus planning such a shift is justified for the following reasons first the hegemonic model has a dismal track record of success in africa and elsewhere second the hegemonic model exacerbates linguistic conflicts in many countries consequently policy makers shun it for fear of jeopardizing the fragile social fabric in their respective countries last a shift away from the hegemonic model is recommended because it is too costly to implement the democratic model is undergirded by the strategic game theory proposed by david laitin it forecasts a 3 1 language outcome for most african countries this outcome supports the three language formula now called for by the united nations development program undp
