in faith the theologian theo hobson explores the notion of faith and the role it plays in our lives he unpacks the concept to ask whether faith is dependent on religion or whether it is also a general secular phenomenon in exploring this question hobson ranges widely over theology philosophy politics and psychology and engages with the writings of christian and atheist thinkers alike the book begins by considering attitudes to faith in recent works of atheism hobson shows how richard dawkins and other writers while attacking faith in one sense have exhibited faith in another the book goes on to explore the wider meaning of faith including our faith in free market capitalism the part faith plays in democratic politics and the role faith has in our psychological well being to understand the role of faith in modernity hobson argues we must attend to the specifically christian concept of faith hobson then returns to the religious meaning of faith by exploring the account of faith in the bible and charting the tension between faith and reason in christian thought the final chapter takes an autobiographical turn and relates how the author came to take faith seriously and to question what christians are meant to have faith in from the old testament story of abraham to the visionary poetry of w b yeats from the polemics of luther to the rhetoric of barack obama the author presents us with a fresh and illuminating meditation on the nature of faith in doing so he reveals how trust and faith the religious and secular are utterly entwined and how the attraction of religious faith outweighs the intellectual difficulties it presents wisdom is ignorance in an unwise society contentment is a state of soul which material possessions or achievements can not provide how great they may be a loving heart is essential and only eligibility to have faith in the god those who do not qualify need not seek it in books or prayers wisdom is ability and ignorance inability to acknowledge and accept the truth religions consist of allowed or not allowed and not necessarily good or truth while faith in the god naturally recognizes universal good and truth who so ever seeks finds the god but religions deny this inborn equal right of humans and each one of them claims to be an exclusive permit holder unlike religions faith in the god is neither a heritage nor an inheritance free your thoughts and you are out of religion meditate on universe and nature and you are in spirituality mostly people are inclined to believe what they like to believe and are not inclined to believe what they do not like to believe this is also bigotry

a major challenge for people of faith is to resist the growing demonization of islam christianity and judaism i want to do something to build bridges between the three religions i feel called to embody in my own life the healing the reconciliation the unity i long for between people of different religions art gish became involved in the life and worship of all three religions he considered himself a christian a muslim and a jew and worked at integrating those three perspectives into his life acknowledging that judaism islam and christianity are all threatened by narrow minded violent extremists who put the particular interests of their own people above our common interests he tells inspiring stories of open minded muslims jews and christians who struggle together for reconciliation and who confront injustices that spawn hostility gish looks not only at the disagreements but also at the unity of the three abrahamic faiths he writes when people cross boundaries exciting things happen each time in israel palestine that i experience jews muslims and christians eating working laughing and crying together i sense a foretaste of the coming kingdom of god a demonstration of how things could be and one day will be how can we grasp the complex religious lives of individuals such as peter an ordained protestant minister who has little attachment to any church but centers his highly committed religious practice on peace and justice activism or hannah a devout jew whose rich spiritual life revolves around her women s spirituality group and the daily practice of meditative dance or laura who identifies as catholic but rarely attends mass and engages daily in buddhist style meditation at her home altar arranged with symbols of mexican american popular religion diverse religious practices such as these have long baffled scholars whose research often starts with the assumption that individuals commit or refuse to commit to an entire institutionally framed package of beliefs and practices meredith mcguire points the way forward toward a new way of understanding religion she argues that scholars must study religion not as it is defined by religious organizations but as it is actually lived in people s everyday lives drawing on her own extensive fieldwork as well as recent work by others mcguire explores the many seemingly mundane ways that individuals practice their religions and develop their spiritual lives by examining the many eclectic and creative practices of body mind emotion and spirit that have been invisible to researchers she offers a fuller and more nuanced understanding of contemporary religion two questions are tackled in this text namely is what or whether one believes the significant religious question and although the religious communities of the world differ in belief how much do they really differ in a faith to address these questions the author explores what the terms faith and belief mean in themselves and the nature of the relationship between them. Smith examines how the increased awareness of the history of religion and comparative culture has contributed to the current understanding of humanity and faith.

In the struggle for existence which is ever going on in literature as in life a new book should show some variation however slight from others of its kind by means of which it may be better fitted to the surrounding conditions of thought and hope to survive for a season. The reason this little book has for its appearance is a slight departure from the usual forms in which the evidences of faith are presented by which it is sought to adapt them more perfectly to the sceptical surroundings of thought in our day. The variation by which this new venture among the great multitude of books hopes to live and to be useful may be said to be the result of a process of natural selection in an American mind from the German idealism and the English positivism the substance of it first formed itself in the author's mind during a season of quiet study of modern German thought and he has since found the reasoning which then enabled his own faith to survive useful in conversation with friends whose scientific studies had both brought them into unwilling doubts concerning those spiritual truths which give to life its real value and at the same time thrown the prevalent proofs of religion out of all relation to their habits of mind.

An intimate cross country look at the new debate over religion in the public schools. A suburban Boston school unwittingly started a firestorm of controversy over a sixth grade field trip. The class was visiting a mosque to learn about world religions when a handful of boys unnoticed by their teachers joined the line of worshippers and acted out the motions of the Muslim call to prayer. A video of the prayer went viral with the title "Wellesley Massachusetts public school students learn to pray to Allah". Charges flew that the school exposed the children to Muslims who intended to convert American schoolchildren. Wellesley school officials defended the course but also acknowledged the delicate dance teachers must perform when dealing with religion in the classroom. Courts long ago banned public school teachers from preaching of any kind but the question remains how much should schools teach about the world's religions answering that question in recent decades has pitted schools against their communities veteran education journalist linda k wertheimer spent months with that class and traveled to other communities around the nation listening to voices on all sides of the controversy including those of clergy teachers children and parents who are muslim jewish christian sikh or atheist in lumberton texas nearly a hundred people filled a school board meeting to protest a teacher's dress up exercise that allowed freshman girls to try on a burka as part of a lesson on islam in wichita kansas a messianic jewish family's opposition to a bulletin board display about islam in an elementary school led to such upheaval that the school had to hire extra security across the country parents have requested that their children be excused from lessons on hinduism and judaism out of fear they will shy away from their own faiths but in modesto a city in the heart of california's bible belt teachers have avoided problems since 2000 when the school system began requiring all high school freshmen to take a world religions course students receive comprehensive lessons on the three major world religions as well as on sikhism hinduism buddhism and often shintoism taoism and confucianism one pentecostal christian girl terrified by idols including a six inch gold buddha learned to be comfortable with other students beliefs wertheimer's fascinating investigation which includes a return to her rural ohio school which once ran weekly christian bible classes reveals a public education system struggling to find the right path forward and offers a promising roadmap for raising a new generation of religiously literate americans
