Alfred Duggan's Saxon novels have a special cachet in the cunning of the dove. This masterly author chooses Edward the Confessor as his hero. The story is told by the royal chamberlain he thinks in English, speaks in French, and writes in Latin, but Duggan does our share of the work and the fog is dissipated. St. Edward is unwrapped from the shroud of ignorance that has enveloped him and is presented as a credible human being, a saint but one whose unworldliness gave him extraordinary political foresight. He is remembered for the splendid foundation of Westminster, but his greatest contribution was his unwavering belief that England needed a Norman rule to unify the country. Before Alfred Duggan wrote this novel, Edward the Confessor was probably the dimmest of English kings, but Duggan is a master and brings to life a whole remote age which we accept, miracles and all. Evening Standard: "He is a true artist, creating and composing from a disciplined imagination. There is no denying the coherence and lucidity of his account." Times Literary Supplement.
