martello towers were built in the early part of the nineteenth century to defend the coast of england against napoleonic invasion almost 200 years later forty one of these handsome brick towers still stand along the coast of kent sussex essex and suffolk the chest of their construction was comparable in relative terms to that of of today s trident missile system the line of towers was never tested in action but acted as an effective deterrent against invasion today martello towers are a familiar sight from aldeburgh in suffolk to newhaven in sussex but it is generally known that similar towers were built by the royal engineers to defend british interests in other parts of the world martello towers were being built as late as the 1850s as far afield as canada mauritius australia and the mediterranean this book illustrated with numerous photographs and plans is the first comprehensive and detailed study of the known martello towers built by the british its description of their construction use current condition and fate will fascinate the enquiring reader as well as being a source of interest to visitors many of the towers remain landmarks today fort denison in sydney harbour being a case in point one night during the midsummer toward the end of july 1963 just several weeks before dr martin luther king delivered his i have a dream speech from the lincoln memorial and about four months before president john f kennedy was assassinated a young american high school graduate awoke from his slumber to see a waking vision of his girlfriend sitting at the foot of a cross cuddling a baby boy two weeks later he was astounded by a very unexpected vision of an enthralling beautiful celestial golden woman who appeared to him high in the night sky seven years later after he happened upon a copy of hermann hesse s novel demian in a hotel room in saigon and read of frau eva he felt her definite presence once more his search for the heavenly woman led him to munich germany where he read novalis and the german romantic writers as his study of the ideal woman or sophia unfolded he landed on the doorstep of a jewish american and irish woman in london with whom he fell in love and later that of a dutch writer and translator in amsterdam who had become a hindu guru during his debate with her on the validity of christianity just a few days after yom kippur 1976 he saw an overwhelming series of visions of jesus of nazareth of gallilee first in a celestial throne room then hovering about the streets of amsterdam as he floated to the queen s palace and the crucifix at dam square and last of all as a universal cosmic man or adam upon whose body the last judgment of the world had taken place martello towers worldwide follows the history of the martello tower from the construction of the early towers built to protect the mediterranean shores of spain and italy right up to the final towers built in the united kingdom during the first world war the book is illustrated with a large number of contemporary and historic photographs drawings and plans a very large number of which were not included in the earlier towers of strength these provide the most detailed information yet published about the development of the martello towers in britain and overseas so the book will be of particular interest to those interested in the history of fortifications architectural conservation and military history generally it will also be of interest to an international readership as the book now has a gazetteer of towers outside the united kingdom that remain today together with a chapter describing a number of towers built in the united states the book supplements the earlier towers of strength and such will be an important addition to the existing bibliography of books on martello towers and fortification organizations increasingly use temporary designs many temporary organizations are assembled by mixing and matching building blocks from static bureaucratic parent organizations into a temporary configuration at the same time such mixed and matched temporary organizations often operate under difficult and dangerous circumstances during operations these temporary organizations can experience numerous internal problems ranging from friendly fire in a military context to budget and time issues in construction projects and problematic coordination in a crisis management context this book develops insight into the relationship between a mixing and matching temporary design strategy and operational problems to so do military and crisis management contexts are systematically studied from a sociotechnical design perspective that emphasizes self organization to develop organizational controllability operating under high risk conditions in temporary organizations demonstrates that a mixing and matching design strategy can be related to system failure furthermore it is shown that a process of self design emerged in which operators attempted to create ad hoc networks for meaningful safe and controllable operations the analyses result in a model that shows mechanisms between characteristics of organizational design and controllability of operations not only does this model have relevance to the military and crisis management contexts relevance is also demonstrated for a broader family of temporary organizations and application of sociotechnical network design theory
