women who have survived sexual abuse are among the most traumatized individuals who seek therapy assisting such clients to reframe transcend their abusive pasts requires enormous sensitivity and therapeutic skill reclaiming herstory ericksonian solution focused therapy for sexual abuse will greatly help therapists hone their craft with its solution focused ericksonian approach and highly refined techniques for working with this population the approach the authors present has evolved through work with hundreds of sexual abuse survivors the authors have found their techniques to be remarkably effective in helping these clients to regain a sense of freedom and empowerment in their lives the authors view the healing process as a collaborative partnership in which the therapist co creates with the client a positive context for healing this process comprises four distinct stages through which every client must pass in order to achieve their own unique potential the book clearly describes the primary symptoms and features of the four stages which are breaking the silence and unmasking the secret becoming visible reclaiming and reintegration of the self empowerment and the evolution of the sexual self it also presents for each stage a series of detailed metaphorical stories exercises and rituals designed to assist a client who is traversing a particular stage numerous suggestions lists questions and vivid case studies help the therapist to identify and assess the individual needs of a particular client and then pinpoint those tools that will best facilitate the healing process at a given stage recognizing the severe toll that work with sexually abused clients can take on the therapist reclaiming herstory also provides strategies for self care that can be used during various stages of therapeutic practice the volume also provides a timely and important discussion of the controversial false memory backlash and its impact on the survivor and implications for the therapist

this book offers a critical examination of certain ideas and values such as remembering forgiveness story telling through truth and reconciliation commissions etc that under gird the transitional practices and mechanisms of societies emerging from conflicts it does so by making the survivors experience the supreme and ultimate judge of the legitimacy of such practices while many scholars have dealt with these topics this book provides a unique perspective on them by using personal stories narratives and memoirs of the survivors as a checking point of the theoretical elaboration of these ideas and values by means of an existential phenomenological analysis of the situation of survivors of gross human rights violations the book assesses how many resources are still available to them so that they can contribute to the processes of reconstruction and reconciliation of their societies this analysis constitutes the background for reading the rest of the book which challenges some assumptions and presumptions of transitional practices such as healing through truth telling or providing justice through reparations it does so by presenting nuanced suggestions on the ways survivors can participate in the reconstruction reconciliation processes without jeopardizing their own well being and in their personal journeys of healing they demonstrate a tenacious faith grounded in gospel truth compelling church leaders to acknowledge this hurtful hypocrisy advocate for healthy pastoral relationships and finally call perpetrators to accountability book jacket the award nominated stories in this collection will bring memories of the future flooding back two new stories and all new afterwords enliven the past with a touch of the present and that which is yet to come you don t need a collection of antique spaceships or a carefully calibrated time machine to share the memories of the final holocaust survivor you don t have to jump through the gate between universes in search of a lost friend all you have to do is open your eyes you ll remember the future the future remembers you focusing on the later manifestations of incest this reference offers a diagnostic aftereffects checklist suggestions for healthy rather than neurotic coping mechanisms and therapeutic treatment strategies this collection of works is intended for pre service and in service criminal justice and social service crisis interveners this book provides theoretical analytical and practical knowledge for those who first respond to crisis in a professional capacity face to face interaction with the client victim is part of the comprehensive approach advocated by this book which requires interveners to assess the nature of a crisis and the condition of the victim in order to determine the appropriate course of action each chapter offers a theoretical overview of a particular facet of intervention as well as models and methods for applying crisis theory to crisis situations faced by interveners although crisis situations are composed of similar elements each crisis is unique within the personal domain due to individual diversity chapters are devoted to crisis intervention for each of the following crises domestic violence spouse abuse child abuse and neglect elder abuse and neglect rape and sexual assault the death of a loved one and suicide at the end of the twentieth century the questions raised and issues explored in woolf studies prove to be sufficient themes of inquiry for a new century can there exist common ground between queer theorists and lesbian feminists or are their causes not connected and must they go their separate ways virginia woolf belongs simultaneously to her time and to ours what allusions would her contemporaries have taken for granted that must now be recovered through meticulous scholarship what codes whose meanings are apparent to readers now would have been available to very few in her own time what was popular film culture like and what connections might we find between woolf s art and british film of the 1920s how can woolf help us think through the dangers of nationalism what does three guineas contribute to a discussion of corporate globalism and how does it illuminate what has happened for women in the academy and in the professions in the sixty years since it was published contributors to virginia woolf turning the centuries who pose and suggest answers to these and many other questions include julia briggs suzette henke sally greene alison booth pamela caughtie judith roof diane gillespie melba cuddy keane and jane lilienfeld the topic of memory has moved to prominence in recent years this is partly due to a spate of anniversaries and commemorations of events such as the holocaust and the second world war whose significance for the present is affirmed even as their meanings continue to be debated ruth linden s bold experimental book explores the interconnected processes of remembering storytelling and self fashioning juxtaposing autobiography and ethnography linden begins this study by situating herself in the context of her assimilated jewish family where the holocaust was shrouded in silences urged forward by these silences linden a feminist and sociologist began to interview jewish holocaust survivors in 1983 as linden interprets survivors accounts of the death camps and the resistance she reveals complex ways in which selves are constructed through storytelling the stories that unfold are continuously fashioned and refashioned never stripped of context or frozen in time what emerges is an unexpectedly elegant montage in which interviewee interviewer and author are intertwined linden s meetings with survivors and her encounters with their stories transformed her as a feminist a jew and a social scientist her analysis reveals the intimate connections between an ethnographer s lived experience and her interpretations of others linden s reflections on the process of ethnography belie the rhetoric of positivism in the social sciences they will inspire other scholars to break free of research and writing practices in their own disciplines that efface the ineluctable bond between knower and known all readers will be challenged to reexamine the holocaust in an intensely personal light and to reconsider the meanings of survival in our own time cutting across the boundaries of ethnography and autobiography to create a new kind of text making stories making selves offers a significant contribution to interpretive social science and the literature of the holocaust linden s original and courageous work is vital reading for holocaust scholars students of modern jewish life sociologists feminist theorists and all readers seeking to understand their own relationship to the holocaust
