an innovative advanced undergraduate and graduate level textbook in urban economics with more than half of today s global gdp being produced by approximately four hundred metropolitan centers learning about the economics of cities is vital to understanding economic prosperity this textbook introduces graduate and upper division undergraduate students to the field of urban economics and fiscal policy relying on a modern approach that integrates theoretical and empirical analysis based on material that Holger Sieg has taught at the University of Pennsylvania. The book explores fiscal policies that directly shape economic issues in cities, such as city taxes, the provision of quality education, access to affordable housing, and protection from crime and natural hazards. For each issue, Sieg offers questions, facts, and background, illuminating how economic theory helps students engage with topics and presents empirical data that shows how economic ideas play out in daily life. Throughout the book, readers are pushed to think critically and immediately put what they are learning to use by applying cutting-edge theory to data. A much-needed resource for students and policymakers, Urban Economics and Fiscal Policy offers a unique approach to a vital and fast-growing area of economic study. It introduces advanced undergraduate and graduate students to urban economics, presents the latest theoretical and empirical research, applies economic tools to real-world issues including housing, labor, education, crime, and the environment, and uses simple economic models and quantitative analysis.

The significance, timetable, and volume of the proposed welfare reforms should not be underestimated. The changes will see housing benefit, currently administered by local authorities, transferring into Universal Credit (UC) to be administered by the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP). Moving in the other direction, Council Tax Benefit and parts of the Social Fund will be replaced with schemes designed and administered by local authorities. This report focuses on implementation and the part that local authorities are playing. It identifies four key areas that will be crucial to the successful implementation of the changes: first, these reforms require close interdepartmental working, particularly between the Department for Communities and Local Government and DWP; second, the government needs to work with the Local Government Association to assess the cumulative impact of the entire programme on local authorities' resources; third, for the simplification of benefits, the government is switching the payment of housing support from the landlord directly to the claimant; housing associations may therefore face increased rent arrears and collection costs, though the government has agreed that this may be offset by excluding vulnerable tenants and an automatic switchback mechanism paying rent to the landlord when a tenant's arrears hit a threshold level. In addition, it is vital that DWP makes good on its assurances that the financial viability of housing associations will not be damaged by the welfare reforms fourth there are concerns about the readiness of ict systems specifically that the systems for fraud detection within uc were still at early development even though implementation is now advanced
