in the hands of such writers as rebecca solnit claudia rankine david shields zadie smith and many others the essay has re emerged as a powerful literary form for tackling a fractious 21st century culture the essay at the limits brings together leading scholars to explore the theory the poetics and the future of the form the book links the formal innovations and new voices that have emerged in the 21st century essay to the history and theory of the essay in so doing it surveys the essay from its origins to its relation to contemporary cultural forms from the novel to poetry film to music and from political articles to intimate lyrical expressions the book examines work by writers such as theodor w adorno kwame anthony appiah francis bacon james baldwin roland barthes maurice blanchot ta nehisi coates annie dillard brian dillon jean genet william hazlitt samuel johnson karl ove knausgaard ben lerner audre lorde oscar wilde michel de montaigne zadie smith rebecca solnit wallace stevens eliot weinberger and virginia woolf essay poetry is only one variation among many forms of poetry that already exist and which will exist in the future i does not pretend or claim to be superior or inferior to other forms of poetry it also does not purport to either dominate or homogenize poetry it is just one rose from the exuberant garden of eden which is filled with many other types of flowers it is just one deer of a certain species that dwells among many other kinds of wildlife it is only one color orange among a rainbow which is enriched by a variety of other colors the current trend toward machine scoring of student work ericsson and haswell argue has created an emerging issue with implications for higher education across the disciplines but with particular importance for those in english departments and in administration the academic community has been silent on the issue some would say excluded from it while the commercial entities who develop essay scoring software have been very active machine scoring of student essays is the first volume to seriously consider the educational mechanisms and consequences of this trend and it offers important discussions from some of the leading scholars in writing assessment reading and evaluating student writing is a time consuming process yet it is a vital part of both student placement and coursework at post secondary institutions in recent years commercial computer evaluation programs have been developed to score student essays in both of these contexts two year colleges have been especially drawn to these programs but four year institutions are moving to them as well because of the cost savings they promise unfortunately to a large extent the programs have been written and institutions are installing them without attention to their instructional validity or adequacy since the education software companies are moving so rapidly into what they perceive as a promising new market a wider discussion of machine scoring is vital if scholars hope to influence development and or implementation of the programs being created what is needed then is a critical resource to help teachers and administrators evaluate programs they might be considering and to more fully envision the instructional consequences of adopting them and this is the resource that ericsson and haswell are providing here this lively collection of fifty two short readable selections by both student and professional writers provides useful models of the rhetorical modes
