the group of artists known as the pictures generation are usually thought to have rebelled against abstract and minimalist art by bringing back figural techniques and borrowing liberally from the aesthetics of mass media and advertising challenging conventional interpretations of this group alexander bigman argues that these artists especially robert longo jack goldstein sarah charlesworth gretchen bender and troy brauntuch deployed totalitarian and fascist iconography to pose new politically loaded questions about what it means to perceive the world historically in a society saturated by images throughout he also situates their work in the context of other developments taking place in new york city at the time including music fashion cinema and literature this is a book about art popular culture and memory and especially about how the specter of fascism loomed for these artists in the 1970s and 1980s and the ways it still looms for us today one possible description of the contemporary medial landscape in western culture is that it has gone meta to an unprecedented extent so that a remarkable meta culture has emerged indeed metareference i e self reflexive comments on or references to various kinds of media related aspects of a given medial artefact or performance specific media and arts or the media in general is omnipresent and can nowadays be encountered in high art and literature as frequently as in their popular counterparts in the traditional media as well as in new media from the simpsons pop music children s literature computer games and pornography to the contemporary visual arts feature film postmodern fiction drama and even architecture everywhere one can find metareferential explorations comments on or criticism of representation medial conventions or modes of production and reception and related issues within individual media and genres notably in research on postmodernist metafiction this outspoken tendency towards metaization is known well enough and various reasons have been given for it yet never has there been an attempt to account for what one may aptly term the current metareferential turn on a larger transmedial scale this is what the metareferential turn in contemporary arts and media forms functions attempts at explanation undertakes to do as a sequel to its predecessor the volume metareference across media vol 4 in the series studies in intermediality which was dedicated to theoretical issues and transhistorical case studies coming from diverse disciplinary and methodological backgrounds the contributors to the present volume propose explanations of impressive subtlety breadth and depth for the current situation in addition to exploring individual forms and functions of metareference which may be linked with particular explanations as expected there is no monocausal reason to be found for the situation under scrutiny yet the proposals made have in their compination a remarkable explanatory power which contributes to a better understanding of an important facet of current media production and reception the essays assembled in the volume which also contains an introduction with a detailed survey over the possibilities of accounting for the metareferential turn will be relevant to students and scholars from a wide variety of fields cultural history at large intermediality and media studies as well as more particularly literary studies music film and art history this volume focuses on the musicscapes that contest critique and rethink mediterraneidad mediterraneaness in contemporary spain and understands it as a fluid and elusive sociological cultural and artistic category the volume argues that since the 1990s we have witnessed a shift in which the mythical image of mediterranean harmony has been superseded by the net a figure that represents the linking of urban nodes and trans governmental networks migratory movements and cultural fluidity further this book assesses how mediterraneidad became within the realm of music the site and sign of a diverse array of social issues such as the formulation of catalan valencian andalusian and mallorcan national identities with the 2017 catalan independence process taking center stage using diverse methodologies data driven sociological approaches ethnographic and anthropological tools feminist and gender theories the authors also address the rapidly changing social landscape that started in the 1980s due to global migrations as well as the dismantling of traditional gender dynamics
