the revolution in financial technology fintech has created many advancements in the lending and investment space across the world law and practice of crowdfunding and peer to peer lending in australia china and japan is a timely publication as fintech grows up and moved into the mainstream of finance in the last decade financial services is a highly regulated industry as it is the lifeblood of a modern economy pelma rajapakse hatsuru morita and yinxu huang have done very solid work blazing a new trail in what is a new industry and how to regulate it properly instead of stifling innovation they have carried out a deep exploration and a thorough compilation of research that will bring everyone up to date on what australia china and japan are planning and doing in the field of crowdfunding and peer to peer lending in addition to peer to peer lending the book focuses on laws and practices related to central bank digital currencies cryptocurrency bitcoin and initial coin offerings icos which is very meaningful and forward looking the authors presented their thoughts in such clarity that even those who lack familiarity with asia pacific will see how fintech was growing in various ways driven by different factors for example peer to peer lending in japan is mostly for small and medium enterprises it was popular in china but cracked down by the authorities for a few years it provides an alternative fundraising channel for the capital market in australia we also see a set of regulatory approaches among jurisdictions some countries draft new regulations while others amend existing laws the mechanism of the regulatory sandbox was introduced as we know one size does not fit all what kind of best practices or lessons learned can we apply to our own jurisdiction this book covers all available answers to date this volume speaks highly of the quality and foresight of pelma rajapakse and her co authors peer to peer p2p lending is a new way of originating loans where borrowers and lenders are directly matched via an online lending platform from its inception in 2005 p2p platforms have been among the fastest growing segments in the financial services space transparency market research suggests that the opportunity in the global p2p market will be worth 897 85 billion by the year 2024 up from 26 16 billion in 2015 this work investigates the p2p lending market from both the platforms and investors perspectives first since p2p lending is a relatively new market the fundamentals of the market keep changing over time therefore treating all historical data equally may lead to a seriously misspecified model for the current market this problem is referred to as concept drift in statistics and machine learning using a rich micro level dataset from prosper marketplace which is one of the largest online p2p lending platforms in the u s we show evidence that borrower and lender behavior is changing over time second by leveraging certain machine learning techniques naive bayes classifier ensemble modeling and hidden markov model and structural modeling we find evidence that prosper marketplace recognizes the concept drift problem when developing their model to assess borrowers risk and set interest rates more specifically we find that prosper assigns different weights to data from different economic environments to train its model in the counterfactual we demonstrate that we can improve prosper s revenue by changing the way prosper uses data third we show that investors on prosper marketplace are more likely to invest in riskier loans during the end of week or end of month periods the end of period effect is in line with the mental accounting theory the end of a mental accounting period propels people to feel less connected with their present selves this feeling of disconnection from their present selves makes people more likely to make riskier decisions since even if the outcomes from those riskier investments turn out to be negative they will soon enter a new mental accounting period and can easily blame their imperfect past selves for the wrong decisions this is an open access book currently the influence of shifts and changes in the legal system due to global political social and economic dynamics demands significant changes to harmonize and adapt the various realities of human relations which are currently dominated by various activities in cyberspace law is the most important and strategic instrument in organizing the space for social interaction and changes in other social institutions and institutions in the current era therefore it is not only about 3 legal instruments such as norms legal institutions and their enforcement but the most important thing is legal education which will build not only legal instruments and systems but also awareness of a new legal culture thus structuring legal education and its educational ecosystem which is connected to other aspects such as economics social cultural religious political and so on is a necessity that continues to be developed law is also the glue and device of a world that is all connected and cross border connected to the digital world as well as an interconnected global society making an agreement on a common global goal help individuals institutions and governments throughout the world to agree on the direction of development focusing on things that are truly beneficial for the future directing all parties to focus on the same thing mobilizing all resources and making it easier to organize and implement so that all parties can move together towards the achievements they

a typical view among china watchers has been that china s finance has lagged behind development in other sectors and is dominated by large stated owned banks however fundamental changes in china s financial system are underway and china s peer to peer p2p lending is now the largest in the world this book is comprised of two parts the first part is a comprehensive analysis of china s p2p lending industry it outlines the factors behind the meteoric rise of china s p2p lending and its challenges the second part is a panoramic survey of china s p2p lending industry with study of typical cases besides it introduces the existing relevant regulations regulators likely upcoming regulatory measures as well as the diverse financial institutions appearing with the development of the industry to analyse in depth the current functioning of the industry in china and its lending practices through a large scale survey essay from the year 2016 in the subject business economics banking stock exchanges insurance accounting grade 1 0 edinburgh napier university language english abstract due to the exponential rate at which technology has developed in recent years plentiful new businesses have established the digital revolution is challenging many well situated regulated and often conservative industries such as the financial service industry several financial technology start up companies also known as finance technology companies fintechs thereby constitute as competitors to traditional retail banks by accessing technological innovations while the fintech etoro is challenging the investment divisions start ups like transferwise are putting pressure on the prices for payment and transfer services the largest market volumes of so called alternative finance models in the united kingdom uk have peer to peer p2p lending businesses such as zopa p2p or social lending allows individuals to borrow and lend money to each other directly without intermediate financial institution such as retail banks subsequently the global trend of disintermediation also arose in the banking industry after reviewing relevant literature the market power of p2p lending as well as its impact on the financial services industry over the last ten years will be assessed furthermore this essay will illustrate the current situation by evaluating the extent to which p2p fintechs replace personal finance functions of retail banks in the uk finally major aspects will be summarised and future aspects will be discussed this paper reviews peer to peer p2p lending its development in the uk and other countries and assesses the business and economic policy issues surrounding this new form of intermediation p2p platform technology allows direct matching of borrowers and lenders diversification over a large number of borrowers without the loans having to be held on an intermediary balance sheet p2p lending has developed rapidly in both the us and the uk but it still represents a small fraction less than 1 of the stock of bank lending in the uk but not elsewhere it is an important source of loans for smaller companies we argue that p2p lending is fundamentally complementary to and not competitive with conventional banking we therefore expect banks to adapt to the emergence of p2p lending either by cooperating closely with third party p2p lending platforms or offering their own proprietary platforms we also argue that the full development of the sector requires much further work addressing the risks and business and regulatory issues in p2p lending including risk communication orderly resolution of platform failure control of liquidity risks and minimisation of fraud security and operational risks this will depend on developing reliable business processes the promotion to the full extent possible of transparency and standardisation and appropriate regulation that serves the needs of customers
