written by two outstanding figures in the fields of western studies and film studies respectively neil campbell s an inventory of echoes worlding

the western in trump era fiction and celestino deleyto s transnational stars and the idea of europe marion cotillard diane kruger the language and linguistics section includes eleven papers that tackle a variety of issues concerning synchronic and diachronic phenomena in the english language of either native or non native speakers at the phonetic lexical or grammatical level these studies are indicative of the various current methodological approaches to research in subfields such as language teaching contrastive linguistics language contact or language variation to name but a few the literature and culture studies section contains nineteen papers on topics as diverse as the field itself ranging from irish canadian south african australian american or english literature to film television and cultural studies finally the round tables section comprises four round tables on literature music film and cultural studies the contributions included in this volume are a representative and significant sample of the quality of the research being carried out at present in spanish universities in the fields of english and american studies and are solid evidence that our field is moving beyond the pandemic and is in excellent health centering on the british kitchen sink realism movement of the late 1950s and early 1960s specifically its documentation of the built environment s influence on class consciousness this book highlights the settings of a variety of novels plays and films turning to archival research to offer new ways of thinking about how spatial representation in cultural production sustains or intervenes in the process of social stratification as a movement that used gritty documentary style depictions of space to highlight the complexities of working class life the period s texts chronicled shifts in the social and topographic landscape while advancing new articulations of citizenship in response to the failures of post war reconstruction by exploring the impact of space on class this book addresses the contention that critical discourse has overlooked the way the built environment informs class identity grandmothers are coming into their own there have never been so many of them as naomi stadlen explains they have always mattered especially in helping their families to survive drawing on grandmothers own words why grandmothers matter describes the experience of having grandchildren across many cultures and discusses the sometimes delicate relationships between grandmother parent child and grandchild this warm and thoughtful book has much to teach us about family dynamics and the role grandmothers play in wider society and will be valuable for parents as well as grandmothers when they enter into a new phase of family life home in british working class fiction offers a fresh take on british working class writing that turns away from a masculinist work based understanding of class in favour of home gender domestic labour and the family kitchen as nicola wilson shows the history of the british working classes has often been written from the outside with observers looking into the world of the inhabitants here wilson engages with the long cultural history of this gaze and asks how home is represented in the writing of authors who come from a working class background her book explores the depiction of home as a key emotional and material site in working class writing from the edwardian period through to the early 1990s wilson presents new readings of classic texts including the ragged trousered philanthropists love on the dole and saturday night and sunday morning analyzing them alongside works by authors including james hanley walter brierley lewis grassie gibbon buchi emecheta pat barker james kelman and the rediscovered ex mill girl novelist ethel carnie holdsworth wilson s broad understanding of working class writing allows her to incorporate figures typically ignored in this context as she demonstrates the importance of home s role in the making and expression of class feeling and identity
