small businesses play an important role in economies including Vietnam. Since the need for information systems is now necessary in every enterprise, most of published studies on information systems have been conducted in developed countries with little in developing or less developed countries. From those few there was no one focusing in Vietnam. This book examines the experiences of 7 Vietnamese small businesses when they adopted information systems. The authors investigated the reasons for the process of and the factors influencing information system adoption. The qualitative research method was used to answer research questions. Semi-structured interviews, content analysis, and open coding were used as the data collection and analysis tool to explore participants' experiences. The analysis resulted in important findings. It confirmed some reasons and factors found in the literature concerning information system adoption in Vietnamese small and medium enterprises. Despite some similarities, the authors found some differences such as government role concerning the information system adoption. The results confirmed some factors and reasons but also brought up some new ones. We suggest therefore some further studies on those

Due to the dramatic shifts in the knowledge economy, this book provides a significant departure from traditional strategic management concepts and practice designed for both advanced students and business managers. It presents a unique combination of new strategic management theory, carefully selected strategic management articles by prominent scholars such as Gary Hamel, Michael Porter, Peter Senge, and real-world case studies. On top of this, the authors link powerful new benchmarks in strategic management thinking, including the concepts of socio-cultural network dynamics, systemic scorecards, and customer knowledge management with practical business challenges and solutions of blue chip companies with a superior performance: Lafite Rothschild, who's who, Holcim, BRL Hardy, Kuoni, BTI, Deutsche Bank, Unisys, Novartis.

Seminar paper from the year 2015 in the subject Business Economics, Business Management, Corporate Governance, Grade 2.0, University of Applied Sciences, Essen, Language: English. Abstract: Internationalization of economy is one of the most important topics of recent times. It is characterized by globalization of the business world, which means that more and more companies compete with foreign ones by entering new markets or introducing new products that are available everywhere through disappearing barriers and boundaries. As a consequence, the question arises: how do companies follow their expansion strategies? A central issue linked to this question is the entry mode decision, because it is essential for the success of the globalization activities of a company. One possible entry mode is called franchising, which is used by a lot of well-known companies worldwide. The focus of this term paper is to evaluate this type of entry mode based on the example of Subway, an international operating fast food chain, to accomplish this purpose the theory of market entry modes is explained in the beginning further an overview of the different entry modes is given in order to highlight the differences between them after that franchising as a mode of entry is explained in detail as a result of presenting the theory a profile of subway follows furthermore the market entry strategy of subway is analyzed regarding the fact how franchising influenced the expansion of the company in general after that the market entry into the chinese market and its challenges is explained to conclude the term paper the theory and the practical example is summarized in order to outline whether subway enters new markets efficiently and how franchising as a market entry mode influences the expansion of the company against the backdrop of the example
