mobilizing for democracy compares two waves of protests for democracy in central eastern europe in 1989 and in the middle east and north africa in 2011 citizen support for democratic and autocratic regimes takes a political culture perspective on the struggle between democracy and autocracy by examining how these regimes fare in the eyes of their citizens taking a globally comparative approach it studies both the levels as well as the individual and system level sources of political support in democracies and autocracies worldwide the book develops an explanatory model of regime support which includes both individual and system level determinants and specifies not only the general causal mechanisms and pathways through which these determinants affect regime support but also spells out how these effects might vary between the two types of regimes it empirically tests its propositions using multi level structural equation modeling and a comprehensive dataset that combines recent public opinion data from six cross national survey projects with aggregate data from various sources for more than 100 democracies and autocracies it finds that both the levels and individual level sources of regime support are the same in democracies and autocracies but that the way in which system level context factors affect regime support differs between the two types of regimes the results enhance our understanding of what determines citizen support for fundamentally different regimes help assessing the present and future stability of democracies and autocracies and provide clear policy implications to those interested in strengthening support for democracy and or fostering democratic change in autocracies comparative politics is a series for researchers teachers and students of political science that deals with contemporary government and politics global in scope books in the series are characterised by a stress on comparative analysis and strong methodological rigour the series is published in association with the european consortium for political research for more information visit ecprnet.eu the series is edited by susan scarrow chair of the department of political science university of houston and jonathan slavin professor department of political science university of zurich most government programs seeking to aid democracy abroad do not directly confront dictators this book explains how organizational politics tamed democracy assistance education for democratic citizenship and human rights education are vital for peaceful sustainable and inclusive societies based on respect for the human rights of every person effective teaching and learning processes require well trained teachers positive learning environments and high quality learning materials this is underpinned by education policy including curriculum development and review which is the main focus of this book the strengthening of education policies in the fields of education for democratic citizenship and human rights lies at the very heart of the efforts of the council of europe the united nations educational scientific and cultural organization the office for democratic institutions and human rights of the organization for security and co operation in europe and the organization of american states these organisations have jointly produced this publication in order to support states commitment to fostering citizenship and human rights education and improving access to quality education for all what can american policymakers learn from the experiences of european democracies while we can look to our own history and to the ideas emanating from our own public sphere by looking abroad we can also learn lessons from european policies from both those that have proven successful and those that have failed the contributors in this volume examine the ways our european allies have dealt with issues such as rising healthcare and pension costs large scale immigration childcare and work life balance and climate change and ask whether such policies might prove effective in the u s context brief and engaging lessons from europe is an ideal supplement for comparative public policy courses and would add a provocative comparative component to u s public policy courses doctoral thesis dissertation from the year 2019 in the subject political science the islamia university of bahawalpur department of political science language english abstract the root meaning of democracy is the power of the people to govern the state directly or through their representatives chosen via free and fair elections these representatives reflect the will of the majority but democracy also ensures the fundamental rights of minority groups as the most popular system of government globally democracy allows people to make decisions for themselves and the public good adherents of democracy and the rule of law argue that government must operate on predictable general and applicable rules established in advance to ensure equality uphold laws and human rights and deliver prompt justice thus democracy and the rule of law are seen as inseparable and interdependent by political scholars analysts and politicians since its founding in 1947 pakistan s political history has been marked by challenges with democracy and the rule of law military coups authoritarian rule bureaucratic interference and political intolerance have prevented the establishment of stable political institutions civil and military dictators have curtailed freedoms by imposing military rule and excessive presidential ordinances undermining the legislature judicial independence has often been compromised with the judiciary used to extend dictatorial rule and legitimize arbitrary decisions under the pretext of state necessity however from 2008 to 2013 pakistan saw a shift towards democratic principles national integrity was strengthened through coalition based government and political tolerance was promoted by both the ruling party and the opposition the parliament passed several laws addressing issues such as abolishing the concurrent list and revising the resource allocation formula which improved the rule of law the military did not directly interfere allowing the parliament to complete its term this shift in democracy and rule of law is analyzed using a qualitative approach drawing on both primary and secondary sources primary sources include official reports judicial verdicts semi structured interviews with prominent figures parliamentary debates and legal and historical documents secondary sources comprise newspaper articles research journals magazines and various books this study aims to provide a comprehensive understanding of the interplay between democracy and the rule of law in pakistan highlighting key challenges and developments seminar paper from the year 2018 in the subject politics region africa grade 85 o university of ghana legon language english abstract this paper presents a brief overview of experiences of multipartyism and constitutional democracy in africa it also examines how multipartyism and constitutional rule has failed to address the post independence governance crisis in africa the main position advanced by this paper is that while constitutional governance and multipartyism have been widely but reluctantly accepted by many african leaders they have failed to build and allow democratic institutions to work in africa since independence african countries have been confronted with myriads of costly political economic and security crises with many deleterious effects on the region s progress at independence most if not all african leaders committed themselves to the path of democracy and good governance but would soon shy away from it the constitutions of most of the emerging states were therefore sooner than later subjected to numerous amendments carried out in a manner that undermined the essence of constitutional rule and principles of multiparty democratic governance what would follow is emergence of both civilian and military authoritarian regimes and concomitant governance development and human rights crises ibid however demise of the cold war and concomitant collapse of the communist block in 1989 would return the euphoria for democracy and departure from authoritarianism both military and civilian by many african countries the early 1990s saw an adoption or a return of multiparty democracy in several african countries and promulgation of new constitutions to help consolidate the new systems of government the so called third wave of democratization brought to bear great pressure on african authoritarian leaders mostly military regimes to adopt freer multiparty democratic political systems an era lucian pye 1990 referred to as the global crisis of authoritarianism the continent witnessed more than ever agitation for comprehensive constitutional reforms and good governance during this era essay from the year 2012 in the subject politics political systems germany grade 2 oo jacobs university bremen ggmbh language english abstract bogaards identifies two broad possibilities how to capture a regime change either through a change of scores on a scale or index of democracy or trough a change of categories these categories can come directly from categorical coding schemes or can be derived indirectly from scores bogaards 2010 this paper compares two of those measures namely national elections across democracy and autocracy nelda and freedom house these two will be subject to a cross comparison with the case study of germany nelda is an almost exclusively dichotomous measure which is set up out of 58 questions concerned with the election procedure of a country 55 measures are yes no questions hence dichotomous while three allow free text answers nelda s country selection follows the list of independent states by gleditsch and ward nelda draws it s out of a secondary data analysis of a variety of sources including data handbooks for the specific regions and several official reports a full list of sources can be found at hyde research yale edu nelda sources hyde marinov 2012 for our purpose we only consider three variables out of the 58 namely nelda 3 to 5 which measure whether opposition is allowed whether more than one party was legal and whether there was a choice of candidates on the ballot freedom house is a ngo that conducts research on democracy political freedom and human rights their most important annual publication is the freedom in the world report freedom house 2012 it measures political right and civil liberty with a total of 25 questions using a continuous scale from four to zero the results are transformed in a fixed mathematical procedure and countries are ranked in an again continuous final scale between one most free and seven not free in each category after combining the results countries are finally ranked as not free 5 5 7 partly free 3 5 or free 1 2 5 freedom house 2012 it is important to notice that freedom house as the name implies primarily is a measure of freedom not democracy however democracy is one part of the freedom house analysis to be considered as an electoral democracy a country only has to fulfill four criteria a political system that allows for a plurality of parties and competition in between them fair voting rights secret fair and regular elections and free access to the political field and campaigning bogaards 2012 democracy is increasingly the standard against which societies are measured the term democratic culture designates the set of attitudes and behaviours that citizens need to have for democratic institutions and laws to function in practice this is an important development from older perceptions of democracy which focused on institutions laws and procedures it is a recognition that democracy will not function unless citizens want it to function in all countries there are committed individuals aspiring to make their societies better democracies as the secretary general of the council of europe thorbj rn jagland has said on several occasions our societies seek to address 21st century issues through 19th century institutions through contributions by authors from europe north america and other parts of the world this book explores how higher education can help find new ways to develop commitment to public space and societal engagement and make democracy more vibrant contemporary societies within europe face many challenges including declining levels of voter turnout in elections increased distrust of politicians high levels of hate crime intolerance and prejudice towards minority ethnic and religious groups and increasing levels of support for violent extremism these challenges threaten the legitimacy of democratic institutions and peaceful co existence within europe formal education is a vital tool that can be used to tackle these challenges appropriate educational input and practices can boost democratic engagement reduce intolerance and prejudice and decrease support for violent extremism however to achieve these goals educationists need a clear understanding of the democratic competences that should be targeted by the curriculum this book presents a new conceptual model of the competences which citizens require to participate in democratic culture and live peacefully together with others in culturally diverse societies the model is the product of intensive work over a two year period and has been strongly endorsed in an international consultation with leading educational experts the book describes the competence model in detail together with the methods used to develop it the model provides a robust conceptual foundation for the future development of curricula pedagogies and assessments in democratic citizenship and human rights education its application will enable educational systems to be harnessed effectively for the preparation of students for life as engaged and tolerant democratic citizens the book forms the first component of a new council of europe reference framework of competences for democratic culture it is vital reading for all educational policy makers and practitioners who work in the fields of education for democratic citizenship human rights education and intercultural education
